Severe slump on way in '80

At least five workmen were killed and 15 injured today when the roof of a 19,500-seat, multi-purpose stadium under construction near Chicago's O'Hare International Airport collapsed with a roar moments after a plane thundered overhead. Spokesmen for the architect and the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said it was too early to speculate on whether the plane had anything to do with the mishap. The roof had been framed and there were piles of plywood stacked on it.

OTTAWA — An economic slowdown nearly as severe as the 1975 recession will hit Canada next year, the Conference Board in Canada reported today.

The manufacturing sector would suffer the earliest and greatest impact from the impending slowdown, the board said in its Quarterly Provincial Forecast.

"Conditions in 1974, which set the stage for the 1975 pause, bear a strikingly uncomfortable resemblance to those now evident," the board said.

During that period, western economies were faced with an abrupt jump in the world price of oil, and interruptions of supply were felt most severely in the United States, which plunged into a recession.

Consumer demand for automobiles and housing dropped drastically during that period and affected Canadian industries supplying those U.S. manufacturers.

"History, it would appear is about to repeat himself, although the repercussions for Canada will not be as severe as those in 1975, nor will the various provinces or industries share the burden of the slowdown in the same fashion."

Meanwhile, the board forecast that Real Domestic Product, which grew to 4 per cent in 1978, will slow to only 3.3 per cent growth this year and to 1.5 per cent in 1980, with the manufacturing sector leading the slowdown.

The board said manufacturing growth would slow to 4 per cent from 7.8 per cent by the end of this year, "deteriorating to a 2 per cent decline in 1980."

Industries such as pulp and paper, steel and textiles, currently operating at near full capacity, would be unable to post any major expansion, the report said.

"Other manufacturing industries, particularly the motor vehicles and parts sector, have begun and would continue to curtail activity in response to softening U.S. demand.

"In summary, there is little room for upward movement in manufacturing, but considerable risk of decline,'' the Conference Board said.

The report identified the construction industry as one of the few to inspire optimism.

"After three years of decline, a welcome expansion is foreseen in non-residential activity in this forecast."

By province, growth in Newfoundland was expected to decline to 2 per cent next year, while Prince Edward Island's growth would reach 4 per cent. Nova Scotia's real growth was forecast at 1.1 per cent and New Brunswick's growth was expected to fall to just more than 2 per cent.

Quebec was predicted to register the country's second lowest growth rate at .8 per cent in 1980, due mainly to a decline in construction. Over-all growth in Ontario was forecast to drop to .7 per cent.

Manitoba was expected to register growth of 2 per cent next year, Saskatchewan 2.4 per cent, Alberta 4.6 per cent and British Columbia 2.6 per cent.

The comparatively bright outlook for the province is attributed to an eight-percent increase in mineral production expected in 1979 and 1980, improved cost-competitiveness and fewer strikes.

Kathleen Ruff resigns for job with CBC TV

RUFF
. . . no parting shots

Kathleen Ruff, the controversial and often outspoken director of B.C.'s human rights branch, is leaving to take a television job in Toronto.

Ruff will join the CBC public affairs program The Ombudsman at the end of August.

Ruff declined comment on the Social Credit government which she has said frustrated her in bringing matters before human rights boards of inquiry.

She has been critical of Labor Minister Allan Williams, the minister responsbile for human rights matters, for declining to establish boards in a number of cases where she felt an inquiry was needed.

But today she said only she's taken a worthwhile job with new opportunities.

Asked to comment on her recent dealings with the Socred administration, she said: "There's no doubt I'd have liked to have seen more done, there's no question about that, but that's all I'll say."

She said her one concern in leaving is that her replacement will only be window-dressing for human rights.

"When dealing in the human rights area you must be prepared to go against the stream," she said. "It's important to stand up for groups who don't get a fair deal even when that becomes unpopular and difficult."

Without that it simply becomes window-dressing, she said.

Ruff's resignation leaves the two top positions in the branch vacant.

Assistant director Reg Newkirk left earlier this year for a position with the federal Human Rights Commission.

Ruff has asked to be on the interview team that will hire her replacement. She said she has the knowledge and experience to chose a successor. And she wants B.C.'s ombudsman Karl Friedmann to also be a member of the panel.

Ruff was appointed human rights director in March, 1973, by the then NDP government.

She gained a reputation for taking a tough, straightforward approach to human rights and any form of discrimination.

She said today the human rights branch director inevitably trends on some fairly powerful toes.

The director is not a comfortable employee to have around, she said, adding that from her experience she's found it would be easy not to do a proper job.

It's too easy to make vague statements of principle and not follow them through.

1,000 killed as dam bursts

NEW DELHI (AP) — About 1,000 persons were killed following the collapse of a dam in western India that unleashed a wall of water six metres high on the town of Morvi and buried it in mud, All-India Radio reported today.

"I am deeply shocked at the enormous loss of precious lives and destruction of property caused by the sudden floods," Prime Minister Charan Singh said in a message to the chief minister of Gujarat state, Babubhai Patel.

Singh sent Agriculture Minister Brahm Perkash to Morvi to survey the damage.

Earlier, a former mayor of the town said he feared the death toll would run as high as 5,000.

Vigilantes guard B.C. environment

The campaign to rid B.C. of people who abuse the environment is being stepped up.

The federal and provincial governments, plus the B.C. Wildlife Federation, have joined forces to expand the watchdog program that seeks out offenders.

For the past four years, hunting and fishing regulations included a mail-in card by which environmental offenders could be reported to the fish and wildlife branch.

Now, the Observe Record and Report program is being expanded to include a free Zenith telephone number and additional cards to be distributed to enforcement sections of the government departments and the affiliated clubs of the federation for people to file when they spot environmental abuse.

"If you keep people nervous, you keep them honest," Bill Otway, executive director of the federation, said. "The deterrent factor is important."

About 200,000 wallet-sized ORR cards are being distributed, to be filled in whenever an environmental offence is observed and mailed or taken to a listed government agency.

And finally, spotted paint

BURY, England (CP) — The Lancashire town of Bury, which gave the world the meat product known as black pudding, now has a new claim to fame — spotted paint.

Officials of the Donald Macpherson company say the paint was discovered by accident.

"The spray-on paint works because each spot is in a chemical sac, which bursts when it hits the surface," a spokesman explains. "The ingredient which prevents the spots from dissolving into the base paint remains top secret."

The paint, which is being exported to many countries, is sold in several color combinations, but customers normally take a mix with one base color and two color spots. It is being used in hospital wards because it is easily cleaned and, adds the company proudly, it already adorns the palaces of several wealthy oil sheiks in the Middle East.

"At one time the mere idea of spotted paint was considered ludicrous," says Gerald Skinn, technical expert with the company. "Now our sales are increasing all the time and there is a growing demand from overseas. We're currently working on a secret formula for stripes."

Run-around follows ferry grounding

Owners of vehicles which were battered in the Queen of Alberni grounding in Active Pass Thursday say they are getting the run-around as they search for someone to process damage claims.

"Nobody wants to talk to you," said Trevor Gallimore, whose small car was crushed beneath a truck when the ferry began to list after running up on a reef.

"You got to one person and they tell you to talk to someone else and so on."

"That ferry will have to sail up the steps of the Parliament buildings before you see me pay anything for this mess," said Terry Elliott, whose tractor trailer was seriously damaged when it slid along the deck of the ferry.

About 60 trucks and cars were damaged when the ferry began to list to port after running aground on the reef.

Bev Penhall, Insurance Corp. of B.C. spokesman, said the fact the vehicles were damaged on the ferry makes no difference to the corporation policy holder.

However, no one knows who will ultimately pay for vehicle damage until the federal transportation investigation into the cause of the grounding is completed, Penhall added.

While most vehicles on board were commercial freight carriers insured in B.C., most of the recreational vehicles on board came from outside of the province and Penhall said those owners will have to deal with their firms individually.

Insurance underwriters for the B.C. Ferry Authority have hired a Vancouver firm of admiralty lawyers who in turn have appointed adjusters to assess damage to all vehicles.

John Jessiman, spokesman for the firm of McCrae, Montgomery, Spring and Cunningham, said he could not even guess when figures of actual damage to vehicles on board will be available.

RCMP were in Active Pass Saturday issuing warnings to sport fishermen who refused to clear the narrow channel for larger vessels.

A police spokesman said five written warnings were handed out along with 50 verbal warnings.

Talks stalled on Ross Dam

B.C. has requested a one-month delay in continuing negotiations with Seattle City Light over the raising of the Ross Dam.

Talks were scheduled to continue this week with Seattle and B.C. environment ministry officials giving their positions for compensating the city for the loss of electricity if the Seattle City Light dam on the Skagit River is not raised.

But B.C. asked for a delay because its proposal has yet to be approved by cabinet.

The water level from a raised dam would flood 4,800 acres of provincial recreation area.

The international dispute has gone on for a decade following a 1967 pact in which the provincial government agreed to the flooding in exchange for an annual payment of $34,000.

Bob Murray, Seattle City Light superintendent, said he doubts the provincial government will submit acceptable terms.

"The bottom line is how much it is worth to them not to have us do something (build the dam)," Murray said Sunday. "The answer, I fear, is that it isn't worth that much to them."

Premier Bill Bennett, whose father, W.A.C. Bennett, was premier when the 1967 agreement was signed, said he doesn't want the dam raised.

Disco dancers putting foot in it

DETROIT (AP) — If you Boogie Oogie Oogie, you might end up looking more like a Disco Duck than a Dancing Queen.

At least, that's what doctors think might happen when folks take to the dance floor to move along with those popular songs.

The disco craze has brought with it a new problem, the American Podiatry Association reported at its weekend meeting here — disco foot.

The ailment is primarily caused by a lack of proper exercise and the shoes chosen for dancing, said Dr. Marshall Solomon, a Livonia, Mich. podiatrist.

He said symptoms can range from sprains and stress fractures to huge calluses and corns.

He said 10 to 12 per cent of his current cases are disco foot sufferers.

However, Dr. Joseph D'Amico, a New York podiatrist credited with identifying the affliction, said that almost 25 per cent of the ankle sprains and foot problems he treats are related to dancing.

"Basically, novice disco dancers lack the stamina and flexibility that rigorous dancing requires," Solomon says. "The dancing may worsen existing foot conditions that patients easily live with under normal, less-strenuous conditions."

About 7,000 foot specialists at the meeting strongly endorsed a warmup stretching-exercise routine — lasting from five to seven minutes — before engaging in heavy disco.

Only then can the pain and suffering associated with disco foot be alleviated, they said.

"Basically, they're the same type of stretches joggers do, like toe touches," said Dr. Solomon.

Although disco foot attacks dancers of both sexes, he said women are more likely to contract the disease.

"Traditionally, their dance steps are flashier than men's. They wear higher heels and pointier-type shoes."

He suggests — in addition to exercise — that women wear moderate high-heeled shoes with a wide toe base, and that men wear shoes with heels not exceeding two centimetres.

"Of course, if foot problems persist, the American Podiatry Association suggests seeking professional care," he said.

Anniversary of bloodshed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Hard-line Protestants and Catholics marked a decade of bloodshed in Ulster this weekend just as it began — with sporadic violence and parades signaling both sides' determination to continue the struggle.

In Belfast and Londonderry, police and soldiers were out in force to contain minor incidents and maintain an uneasy truce on the 10th anniversary of the deployment of thousands of British troops in Ulster to put down Catholic rioting.

The decade of shooting and bombing has claimed 1,936 lives and shattered the nerves of countless more in a province one violence-weary local resident said "floats not on Guinness, but on Valium."

More than 5,000 Republican sympathizers marched through pouring rain in Belfast Sunday to "Get the Brits out" of Ulster and the outlawed Irish Republican Army took the opportunity for a morale-boosting show of strength.

The parade was headed by 40 young IRA sympathizers dressed in black berets and black hooded jackets, followed by a line of marchers clad only in blankets in symbolic sympathy with IRA detainees in Long Kesh prison camp.

In the battle-scarred Falls Road area, a group of masked IRA men and women drew lusty cheers from local residents as they played war games for the benefit of TV camera crews — darting from door to door, guns at the ready.

After a rally at a local football field, a gang of youths set a hijacked truck ablaze and attacked a police station with rocks and stones.

Police fired rounds of plastic bullets across the littered street to disperse the teen-agers, who were toddlers when the strife began in 1969.

On Saturday, it was the turn of the hard-line Protestants to parade, swagger and taunt. Some 16,000 bowler-hatted Loyalists paraded through Londonderry, banners swirling to the sound of fife-and-drum bands in the annual Apprentice Boys march through the Roman Catholic districts of the town.

SUPERTRAMP drew a super crowd of 40,000 Saturday night to Vancouver's Empire Stadium and police said later patrons for the popular rock music group's concert were exceptionally well behaved.

ing the law, charges will be laid, he said.

Ferry officials say a preliminary investigation into the cause of the grounding has not been completed, but indicated the number of small fishing boats in the area were a factor. The findings of that investigation are expected to be made public this week.

Transport and Highways Minister Alex Fraser today cabled Ottawa calling for a closer look at the hazards created by the sports fishermen.

Fraser noted B.C. has complained several times in the past about the problem.

"I would now request that you take the necessary action to eliminate dangers inherent in allowing sports fishing boats to impede the navigable channel in Active Pass and in other areas where ferry traffic is heavy," Fraser cabled to Transport Minister Donald Mazankowski.

When asked if he wanted small craft banned from the pass, Fraser said he doesn't know if a ban is necessary, but he would like to at least see better policing.

Meanwhile, it appears the ferry, which is drydocked in North Vancouver for repairs, is not as seriously damaged as had first been feared.

Part of her massive rudder was ripped off, the propeller shaft bent and one propeller blade torn off.

Gold continues its upward surge

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar dropped today on most of the world's money markets and the price of gold continued its surge beyond $300 an ounce.

Only in Tokyo did the dollar rise, finishing at 216.00 yen, a fractional increase against Friday's close of 215.90.

Gold rose in Zurich and London, opening at $303.25 an ounce in London and $303.375 an ounce in Zurich. At Friday's close, gold was $302.375 an ounce in London and $303.125 an ounce in Zurich.

received 24 hours a day and acted upon as soon as possible.

"Once people become aware of this program, I'm sure we'll get calls that run into the thousands every week," said Otway.

Mike Halleran, federal fisheries spokesman, said: "This is not a defence of private property, this is a defence of things and values that belong to everyone in this province . . . it's really a matter of ethics."

They want sportsmen to watch for acts such as shooting game out of season, poaching, illegal fish canning and selling, disruption of fish habitat and dumping refuse in lakes or rivers.

The ORR program will be publicized by television commericals, a slide show, posters and brochures.

B.C.'s chief conservation officer Ralf Aldrich said the program seeks public information in keeping the ministry informed, but emphasized concerned citizens are only to observe and report.

He said the program is like an environmental neighborhood watch.

"We want to make the point that people have no power of arrest."

There are two ways to report. If an observer is willing to testify the ministry will try and take the offender to court. But if a person wants to remain anonymous the ministry still appreciates the information but will not likely be able to lay charges.

The Weather

Map valid until noon Tuesday

The dry warm weather is expected to hold over the northern and central portions of the province for the next few days. However, some changes appear likely for the south. Clouds covering a large area of the northwestern states are creeping northward. Thus, some clouds are expected to drift into southern B.C.

But heroes aren't supposed to cry

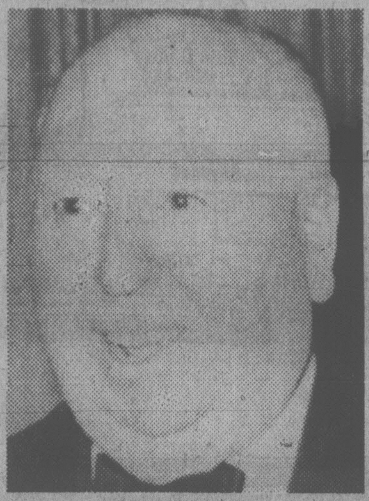
Minnesotan Gerry Spiess who crossed the Atlantic Ocean in a 3-metre sailboat, wept for joy Sunday when hundreds of residents in his hometown of White Bear Lake, honored his daring feat. Spiess, who soloed his home-made Yankee Girl across the Atlantic in 54 days, broke down during a celebration featuring a band, a parade, speeches and a message from President Jimmy Carter. "They keep calling me a hero all the time but three times (today) I've cried and they say heroes aren't supposed to cry," Spiess said.

Backstage at the Martin Beck Theatre in New York, there is a notice reminding the cast members that it would be nice if they donated blood when a group of nurses came round a few hours before Wednesday's matinee. That might not be worthy of note, except that playing at the Martin Beck is Dracula, in which blandishments for blood are hardly unknown. Jean LeClerc, the latest actor to play the thirsty fellow from Transylvania, and others in the production say they can be counted on to give their all — or at least some — for the Greater New York Blood Program, which runs short of donors from time to time.

A woman who says her breakfast cereal was responsible for paralyzing the left side of her face has filed suit against Jewel Food Stores and the Kellogg's cereal company. Alpha Rigsby, of Moline, Ill., is asking $15,000 in damages from each defendant. Her claim says she was eating some Kellogg's Frosted Mini-Wheats two years ago when she bit into a "large piece of solid material." Although Kellogg and Jewel represented the food as "good and wholesome and fit for human consumption," the lawsuit adds, the woman broke her tooth and injured her jaw on the material and that the injury caused the paralysis. The suit does not specify what "solid material" caused the injury.

Faced with the threat of a contempt citation, entertainer Dolly Parton has agreed to answer questions posed by lawyers for her former singing partner, Porter Wagoner, who is suing her for $3 million. "We will answer the questions by Aug. 27, but I think some of them are frivolous and I raised objections to many of them in court," said Stanley Chernau, Miss Parton's lawyer. Wagoner filed suit against Miss Parton on March 21 in Nashville, alleging his one-time singing partner breached a contract with him by removing 130 songs from the catalog of their jointly-owned Owepar Publishing Co. He also charged she recorded some of them herself without his permission. Miss Parton, however, denied that she took the songs from the catalog. She also alleged that Wagoner voided their management agreement.



HITCHCOCK
. . . the short night

There is nothing sinister about it — Alfred Hitchcock is 80 years old today. And Hitchcock, although hobbled by arthritis, says he is at work on the script of his 54th feature-length movie. "Right now I'm calling it The Short Night, and it is based on the case of George Blake . . . a famous British spy who betrayed 42 British agents and was sent up for 42 years — one of the longest sentences in English jurisprudence," Hitchcock said in a telephone interview from his Bel-Air home. But today was to be a quiet one for the master of suspense films and his wife of 53 years, Alma, who has been immobilized with a stroke. A spokesman for Universal Studios said: "We haven't planned anything for Hitch this year. Neither he nor Alma are up to it."

And finally, in case more proof is needed that popular attitudes are changing on many subjects, one could go to Bridgeport, Conn., where Chester Collins went on medical leave from the Police Department three months ago and Mary Collins expects to be back later this month. They are the same person. Officer Collins, a 37-year-old divorced father of two, underwent a sex-change operation in New York two months ago and now, as Mary Collins, says she sees "no reason why I cannot go back on the job." Joseph Walsh, Bridgeport police superintendent, agrees, calling her "an excellent police officer."

Fire panic on the French Riviera

ST. TROPEZ (Reuter) — Forest fires in France, Portugal, Spain and Yugoslavia during the weekend have taken at least one life, forced the evacuation of hundreds of tourists and burned more than 25,000 acres of land.

Officials said today that fires in the hills above the French Riviera have been brought under control, but that a sudden increase in wind might fan flames again.

In the worst-hit county of Var, an official said only a few small fires still were burning. But he warned that the flames might spread rapidly again if the treacherous mistral wind that blows across southern France from North Africa suddenly gained strength during the day.

The fires have razed about 25,000 acres in the coastal strip between Marseille and St. Tropez.

Fires still were continuing through parts of tinder-dry woodland along the coast from Cannes to Montpelier, although thousands of weary firefighters reported gaining the upper hand after a four-day battle.

The dry European summer also has caused similar trouble in Portugal, Spain and Yugoslavia.

A major forest fire near the central Portuguese city of Combra killed a woman and destroyed at least six houses Sunday.

Hundreds of firemen also spent the weekend fighting brush fires near the seaside resort of Cascais, west of Lisbon.

In northeastern Spain, flames swept along a 15-kilometre front in Tarragona province.

And in Yugoslavia, thousands of tourists have been evacuated from island and mainland sites along the southern Adriatic coast because of fires which destroyed pine woods, vineyards and olive groves.

But the most spectacular blazes of all have been along the French Mediterranean coast where not a drop of rain has fallen since May. Tourists ran for their lives during the weekend as flames bore down on campsites at the edge of forests.

PLO rebuffs Carter

DAMASCUS (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization has rebuffed overtures from the Carter administration and again demanded recognition of the Palestinians' right to their own state, in effect killing chances for a change in U.S. policy feared by Israel.

At a weekend policy meeting in this Syrian capital, the 57-member Palestine Central Council decided that U.S. feelers toward the PLO were a ploy to divide moderates from radicals in the eight groups under the PLO umbrella.

The council, the PLO's political assembly, decided unanimously to reject any dialogue with the United States "as long as Washington refuses to recognize the PLO and the legitimate rights of our people" to an independent state, PLO spokesman Yasser Abd-Rabbo told reporters.

"Most of the speakers last night were unanimous that what's being said about a dialogue between the United States and the PLO are only manoeuvres aimed at clouding the Arab position and dividing the Arabs," he said.

200 Klansmen under arrest

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Backed by riot-equipped police and packing a pistol on his hip, Mayor Emory Folmar kept his pledge that Ku Klux Klansmen would not thread their white power march through his city without a parade permit.

Klansmen began an 80-kilometre march Thursday in Selma, walking the route of a civil-rights protest with vows to go "armed to the hilt," and to destroy any challenging enemy.

But the end of the march, scheduled for the grounds of the Capitol, took place behind the barred windows of police vans on Sunday when almost 200 Klansmen were arrested as they entered the city without the permit.

The white-robed hooded marchers surrendered without resistance.

Bill Wilkinson, the imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and organizer of the march, was silenced as he and his followers were arrested by Police Chief Charles Swindall.

Speaking into a bullhorn, Swindall told the marchers: "You are violating the law by parading without a permit. You are now under arrest for that violation."

As the marcher were taken away, they chanted: "The K-K-K is here to stay." Police booked 186 adults and 12 juveniles for the parade-law violation and released the adults on $500 bail each. The juveniles were detained until a hearing today.

BATA, Equatorial Guinea (Reuter) — Fugitive dictator Francisco Macias Nguema has been cornered in thick bush in eastern Equatorial Guinea and his capture is imminent, a military spokesman said Sunday.

Macias escaped capture last night when troops ambushed his car near the border with Gabon and Cameroon, said Lieut. Florenco Maye Ela.

"We took his driver but Macias fled into the bush," Maye said.

"Now that he is on foot and alone, we shall get him," Maye added.

Nuclear plant waste buried

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — A semi-trailer load of 157 drums of low-level nuclear waste from the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania has been buried at Hanford nuclear reservation, spokesmen said Sunday.

Vern Apple, spokesman for Nuclear Engineering Co. Inc., which is handling the storage at Hanford, said the initial shipment arrived at Hanford Friday without incident.

A crane lowered the drums of radioactive material from Three Mile Island's Unit 2 reactor into an eight-metre pit. The drums contained clothing, plastic bags and paper materials used in the cleanup of the Three Mile Island accident.

Another waste shipment is expected this week with about 600 containers of similar low-level wastes following over the next three weeks in about four loads.

Apple said between 100 and 200 loads could be expected over the next two years or more.

Uses for lottery funds

Ontario cabinet ministers are beginning a debate that will doubtless soon extend to all provincial governments as they receive larger shares of lottery money after the dissolution of Loto Canada. The question is the best use of the lottery funds that are swelling government coffers.

Should lottery profits cover the costs of "essential" government services now strapped for funds because of restraint programs? Or should the policy remain that these funds are diverted to less essential areas such as culture, recreation, amateur sport and special events?

In Ontario, Treasurer Frank Miller is arguing that funds for capital expansion and new equipment for hospitals are desperately short. These are areas, he said, where lottery funds could be used most successfully.

He and other ministers who favor broadening the base of lottery-funded projects point out that community projects paid for by lotteries often create new problems — meeting the operating costs once the first lottery grant runs out.

On the other hand, ministers in favor of retaining the status quo say that to divert lottery funds into essential services would be to turn lotteries into a form of taxation. Also, they say, using lottery funds for continuing programs is dangerous because the size of the lottery pool each year is undependable and cannot be controlled by the government.

To many people, it seems absurd that the government is giving away lottery money to upgrade ski hills, support experimental theatre and send sports teams around the province when hospitals are struggling desperately for money to maintain a high level of care. Why can't we follow the example of the Irish, they ask.

Yet, in the longer term, it must be remembered that provision of facilities for recreation and culture may well save money that would otherwise be spent later in health care costs for unfit citizens.

In the current climate of restraint, these programs might well get no money at all were it not for the lotteries. If that were to happen, all of us would be the losers.

The debate in Ontario is, however, most healthy. Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis should be encouraged to begin similar discussions here.

Making the pass safer

The accidental grounding of the Queen of Alberni in the narrowest part of a very narrow Active Pass has focussed attention once again on the congestion caused in the channel by sports fishermen and commercial trollers. Some witnesses blamed the crowd of small boats in the vicinity for contributing to the mishap.

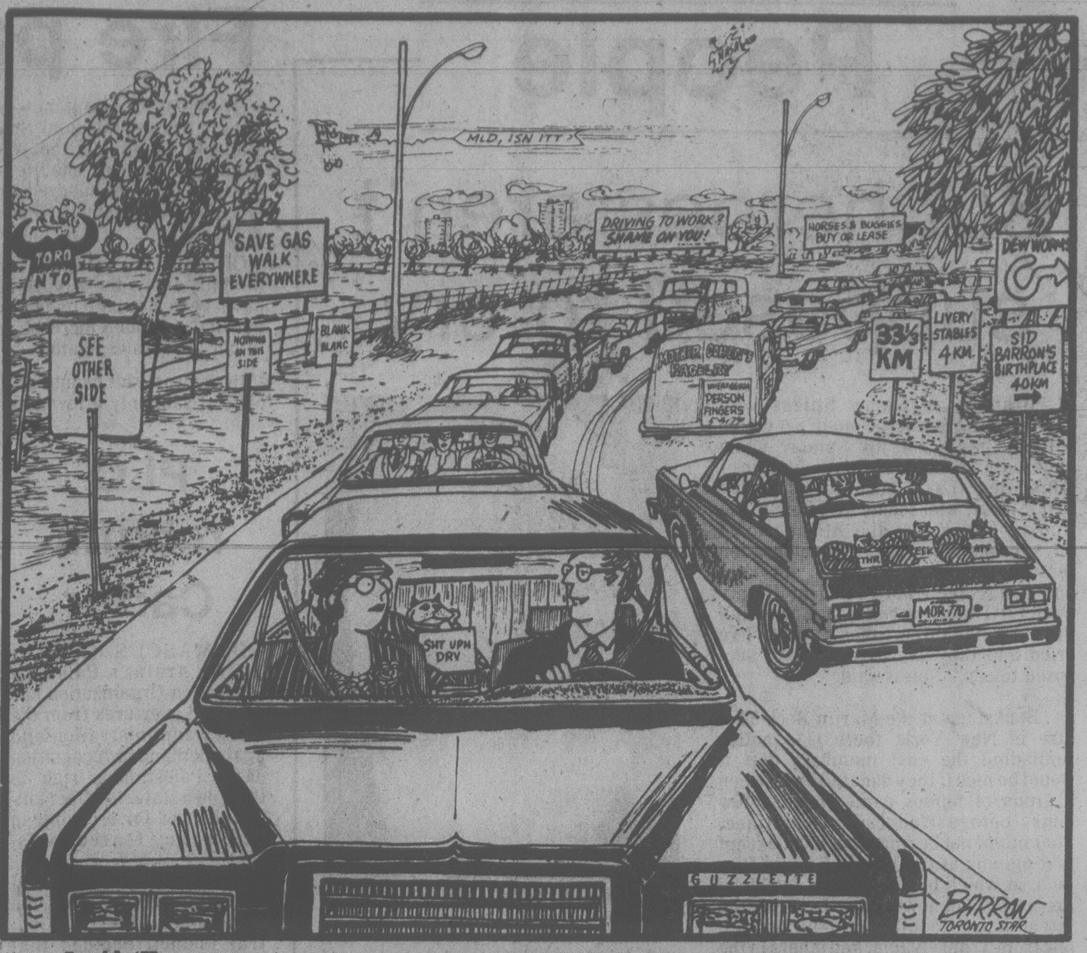
It may be coincidence but the two worst accidents to hit the B.C. ferry fleet occurred practically on the same spot in the same week at the height of summer when the entrance to the pass is crowded with several dozen small boats, some of them with very stubborn skippers aboard.

Anyone who has travelled this busy route to the mainland must sympathize with the ferry captains. The trip through Active Pass is tricky enough without playing a game of nautical chicken with every 12-foot outboard whose owner thinks he has a proprietary right during salmon season.

The eastern and western entrances to the pass are only 500 metres wide and the rip touches six or seven knots at each change of tide, a very significant factor for a ferryboat whose top speed is not much more than twice that.

In open waters, the ferries could simply move out of the way when the fishermen move into a salmon hot spot, but Active Pass is the only feasible route for southern Vancouver Island. Porlier Pass, another 15 miles to the northwest, is shorter but the current is also tricky. To find an opening south of Active Pass, the big ferries would have to sail into U.S. waters, around the tip of Saturna Island. Each of these alternatives means a big dogleg detour and a longer and more expensive trip. Fares would have to go up and the number of sailings would be cut.

Active Pass is the choke point on the Island's commercial lifeline. Geology and the tides can't be changed, but crowding by small boats is one factor which can be. Just as large freighters and tankers were banned from the pass in 1970 when three people were killed aboard the Queen of Victoria, small fishboats and pleasure craft may have to be kept out as well.



". . . I said: 'Hav yuu noe tst, Eds frn isn grn nny mor?' I don't know what it means . . . I just like making up things from licence plate letters, that's all . . ."

PAUL WHITELAW

Pay-off or training ground?

OTTAWA — It's being attacked as a $5,600 a year political payoff and praised as an on-the-job school for future cabinet stars.

The Conservative cabinet is in a dither over the possibility Prime Minister Joe Clark may drastically curb the longstanding Commons tradition of appointing parliamentary secretaries.

"It's something that's being talked about," says one cabinet source, "but there has been no final decision."

Cripple effectiveness

Now Clark has returned from Africa, he will be told in no uncertain terms by some cabinet members that their effectiveness would be crippled if the plan goes through.

Parliamentary secretaries are backbench MPs assigned to act as aides to ministers, a role that adds $5,600 a year to their basic salaries of $28,600.

But it's not just the extra money that makes such an assignment a coveted political plum.

When their ministerial bosses are absent from the Commons, it is the parliamentary secretaries who get to answer questions from opposition MPs. That allows normally anonymous government backbenchers to share in the Parliamentary limelight and, occasionally, get their faces on the television news.

Moreover, these lucky MPs get to accompany ministers on trips abroad and can often share an insiders' knowledge of what goes on at cabinet meetings and what is said at off-the-record briefings.

However, all that assumes that the minister to whom a parliamentary secretary is appointed has confidence in his aide and what one MP calls a "good personal chemistry."

While many ministers call on their parliamentary secretaries as a source of cheap labor — some of them work up to 50 hours a week on departmental business — other cabinet members have been known to jealously guard their political turf.

Then a parliamentary secretary enjoys title and the extra income but is little more than a "bag carrier" for his boss.

Clark, according to sources, feels that few members of his cabinet need the assistance of parliamentary secretaries.

Cabinet ministers who disagree point out that eliminating the positions would result in only a small cost saving. They note that if all of Clark's ministers were given parliamentary secretaries, the cost addition to the payroll of MPs would amount to only $162,400.

Another important consideration is the role of political patronage in keeping the Tory caucus happy.

An appointment as a parliamentary secretary can appear impressive to an MP's constituents. More importantly, government backbenchers — unlike opposition MPs — are not encouraged to ask embarrassing questions in the Commons. Therefore, they receive relatively little news coverage.

Appointing an MP as a parliamentary secretary is one way to pay off and silence caucus rebels and reward loyal backbenchers.

In addition, being named a parliamentary secretary has been one way past governments have provided on-the-job training for eventual cabinet promotions. Pierre Trudeau, for example, served for a time as parliamentary secretary to then prime minister Lester Pearson.

'Have to have one'

So concerned are some Conservative cabinet ministers that they have sought out Liberal friends to ask for a candid and private assessment of the parliamentary secretary's role.

"I've told two ministers that they simply can't function in their jobs without a parliamentary secretary," says one Liberal who as an MP who held such a post.

Prior to the election, the Liberals had 27 parliamentary secretaries. Only Iona Campagnolo, the minister of state for fitness, and Robert Andras, head of the economic development ministers' board, did not have one.

In addition to the prime minister, there are 29 ministers in the new Tory cabinet compared to 31 in the Liberal government.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Spies in Washington? Yawn

WASHINGTON — The headline in the Post the other day was strident: Foreign Spy Activity Found Rampant in U.S.

Yawn.

The news that Washington is a city of spies, counterspies, spy-exposers, spy-recruiters, agents provocateurs, spies in from the cold, spies turned sour and Russian doormen, chauffeurs, journalists and cleaning-ladies doubling as spies, is hardly the kind of stuff to make one fall out of bed.

They are everywhere, these practitioners of the clandestine arts. Part of the landscape. They wear leisure suits and drive Toyotas and watch ballet at the Kennedy Centre and live in the suburbs and cheat on the thermostat laws.

Garden variety

If you work in the Washington area and don't personally know at least one low-level functionary who probably reports to the KGB, you're nobody. Journalists fall over them every day.

On a number of occasions, for example, I've had lunch with a guy from an iron curtain embassy whose name doesn't matter.

(It's not that I don't want to blow his cover or anything. His name, rank and job description are surely on some CIA computer card, along with his friends and — let's be honest — the people he lunches with.

(U.S. officials believe that virtually every staff member of every communist-bloc embassy bears watching.

(So I'll call him Rudi. His real name is impossibly polysyllabic.)

It's a safe bet that Rudi, an amiable press attache from an East European nation, is periodically asked by his superiors to unburden himself of intelligence droppings he's collected in the course of his job.

This might include new trends in American menus, changing dress habits among the U.S. proletariat, and how North American journalists fell about Skylab and amateur sports.

Rudi and I had lunch three or four times. He likes French cuisine and the occasional Peking duck. He's a miserable tipper. In one posh French restaurant, he left $1.50 and the maitre'd was rude to him.

The first time we met, we talked about nothing but the '76 Olympics in Montreal, which we'd both attended. When he unbuttoned his jacket, I checked to see if he was wired for sound. He was clean.

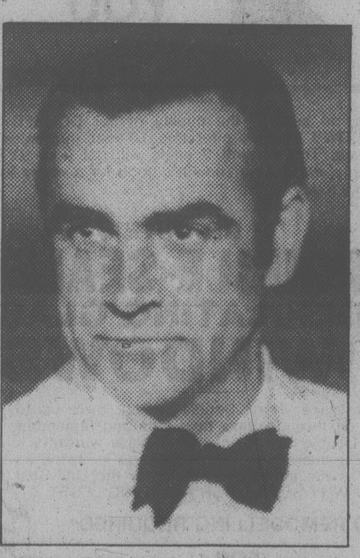
The sauce bernaise was so good I became expensive. "Kornelia Ender is a dynamite swimmer," I said. His eyes lit up. We shared a joke about Mayor Drapeau. We admitted, after the second bottle of Pisse Dru, that the opening ceremony music had brought us both close to tears.

As we parted on Pennsylvania Avenue, I checked the street expecting to see a jet-black Plymouth containing a crew-cut man with a telephoto lens.

A month later, Rudi and I shared a duck at a superb Chinese place on Vermont Avenue. We drank Heineken. He asked me about Pierre Trudeau and Rene Levesque. I was defensively vague. I quoted Peter Newman and Larry Zolf. He asked me what I thought about the parliamentary system of government.

Disturbed by the drift into Canadian geopolitics, I excused myself. He left a dollar tip.

At our final luncheon (in a creditable steakhouse several week later), Rudi appeared distracted and ill-at-ease. He had a mild flu. "The Russian variety?" I asked waggishly. "Pardon me?" he said. We ordered Schlitz and sirloin.



SEAN CONNERY - JAMES BOND
. . . none like him in Washington

We alked desultorily about life in the suburbs and the price of gas. He tested me once or twice with questions about U.S.-Canada border broadcasting problems and the state of the Canadian dollar but I feigned ignorance.

"Do you enjoy your job?" he asked. It was the closest he had ever come to sarcasm. "If you ever plan to visit my country, I know some good hotels." I know a kiss-off when I hear one.

With that, we parted. I haven't heard from him in 10 months. Rudi, I'm sure, is busy ploughing more fertile ground.

Across the hall in the national press building is a wooden door with a plaque that reads "Tass, telegraph agency of the Soviet Union." The bureau chief is Evgeny Egorov. His staff consists of a collection of Bobikovs, Ivanovs and one Leonid L. Buz.

In two years, Mr. Egorov, one of the most taciturn men in the universe, has spoken perhaps three words to me. It was in the dead of winter, and he mumbled something about snow.

A defector!

Either the office is soundproofed, or the Russian journalists do not use typewriters. Not a sound issues from the suite of rooms, not even the familar ticky-tic-tac of a wire service teletype. One evening, while the cleaning ladies were emptying the trash in the Tass office, I stuck my head in the door. The place was immaculate, not a stray paper or an errant pen.

Western journalists quip that everything, every press release, handout and third-class mailing, is expedited home to Moscow in "the bag" for analysis.

One brief anecdote: On a rainy evening about a year ago, I witnessed an unsuccessful defection in front of the Tass door. A young black man in a three-piece brown corduroy suit knocked on the door and told the correspondent who answered: "I am an ex-marine and I want to go to the Soviet Union."

The bewildered correspondent told the young man he'd come to the wrong place. The young man persisted. The Tass man slammed the door in his face.

I pointed to my office door: "How about Canada?" It was the least I could do.

Not just bigotry

Your Aug. 7 issue deals with a "backlash" summarizing the concerns of British Columbians about a large influx of "boat people." We are told that our attitude towards Asians is often unfriendly, even among the "moderate" who do not harbor racial biases.

Perhaps some of our reluctance in accepting too many immigrants deserves some understanding.

It is true that, at this moment, the refugees are directed to many other parts of Canada, but the sponsorship of local governments, institutions and private individuals will last only one year. After that time, many newcomers who cannot adapt themselves to the harsh climate of Ontario and the Prairies, will probably move into our province, as we enjoy mild winters and find already a large number of Asians in our cities.

Provincial boundaries do not (and should not) exist in our country, and retiring Canadians resettle in our province to escape from ice and snow. Many bring their lifetime savings, their public and private pensions and are an asset, not an economic liability to British Columbia. They are Canadians, with the same ideals and values as the people born and raised in B.C., and they do pay for all the goods and services they need.

But there are problems of space, housing, transportation and energy, as well as limited hospitals and health clinics, to be faced honestly and squarely. And because of all these problems, the reluctance of British Columbians to accept a very large number of Asian refugees should not be labelled as bigotry or selfishness. In general, the views of many residents here reflect a rational and practical assessment of factual circumstances and realities that cannot possibly be ignored. Adding to all said above, there is the urgent necessity to greatly improve the standard of living of our Indian people: as first Canadians they should come first in our list of priorities. — E.J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Do you trust them?

In the 1975 election campaign the Social Credit party promised to do away with the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia and abolish forever B.C.'s public insurance services.

Immediately following the Socreds' re-election in 1979 they passed legislation that did away with . . . Seaboard Insurance Company of British Columbia.

Can a Social Credit government be trusted? — William L. Hartley, 2526 Government Street.

Look around you

It is difficult to express the feeling of sadness and shame I experience when I hear some of our citizens' negative comments on radio talk shows and read the bigoted letters to the editor in our daily newspapers.

The boat people refugees from Southeast Asia deserve at least an expression of sympathy from us, who live in a land of abundance.

The luxuries we take for granted, the opportunities we have, the life we enjoy cannot be diminished by offering a helping hand to a few thousand of these poor souls who are struggling for their very existence.

Imagine a father and mother with their young family clinging to an overcrowded boat, without food or water, warmth or medicine, knowing they are doomed to perish . . . unless someone in a more favored part of the world reaches out and offers them assistance.

Now look around your own home, your own community, your own province, your own country, and try to say with conviction that we have no room here, that we are too poor, that we cannot afford to offer some help to those in such terrible need.

The poorest of us in British Columbia are wealthy and well cared for in comparison to these refugees that some of us would turn away.

Thank God this negative expression we hear represents but a small minority of our citizens in British Columbia. We are a far more generous people than that. — Tom Waterland, Minister of Forests.

American roulette

People have become very blase about space affairs in the decade since the American version of Russian roulette, played last month with the 77-ton Skylab, was really quite exciting. The excellent illustration of its possible orbits given in your paper on July 6 showed that Skylab could easily have come down on the orbit which intersected: Burma, Vietnam, Borneo, Australia, New Zealand, Peru, Colombia, England, Belgium, eastern Europe, Russia, Afghanistan and finally over Bombay and the southern part of India.

These are mostly very highly-populated areas and Skylab with its long "footprint" would have caused untold damage. It was purely a matter of chance, or maybe of divine intervention, that it came down on the least important orbit — that over Canada and Western Australia!! — Roger G. Napier, 80 King George Terrace.

Commendation

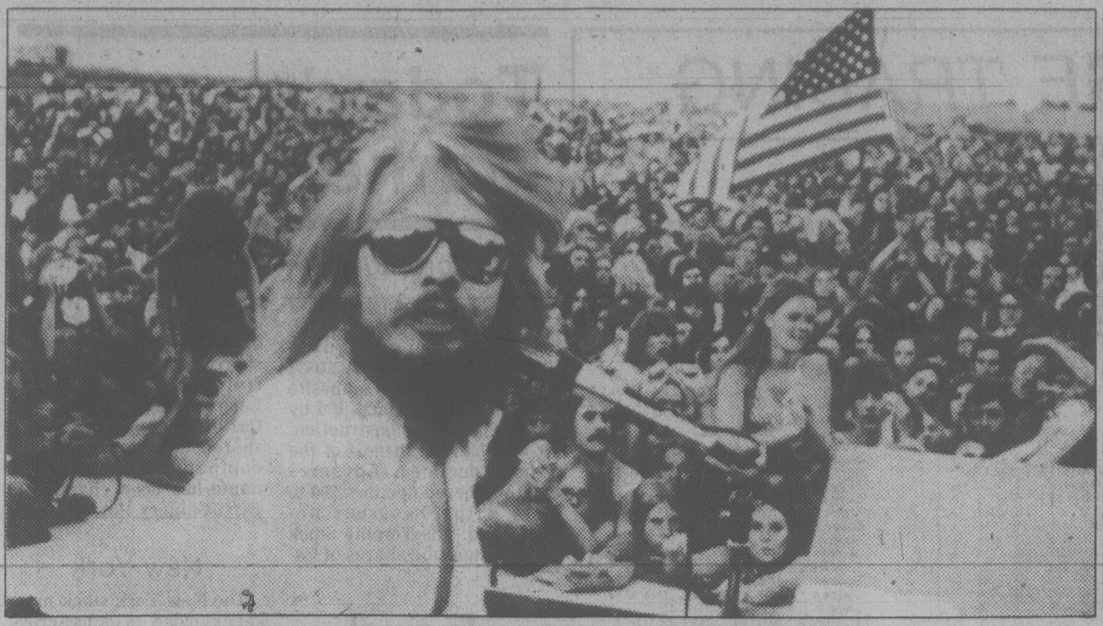
We wish to commend the hospital board of Victoria General Hospital for their stand on continuing present standards of health care.

It is hoped that other hospital boards will follow their example. — The staff of Glengarry Hospital, 1780 Fairfield Road.



Leon Russell and part of the Woodstock crowd

The field ten years later . . . back to growing hay

Woodstock: When the kids all lost their innocence

By ALAN PARACHINI
Los Angeles Times

WHITE LAKE, N.Y. — It is gone now, all of it. The peace, the music, the love and the drugs.

Gone are the ingenuous smiles from 10 years ago, gracing the faces of 300,000 to 750,000 young people in a hayfield in this Catskill Mountains dairy farming community, 100 miles northwest of New York City.

Gone, too, is the belief that simply by coming and being here for the Woodstock music festival a decade ago, the tribe of youth spawned by the 1960s — Woodstock Nation, the radical Abbie Hoffman later called it — was in attendance at the sunrise of the Aquarian Age.

For three days in the middle of August, 1969, the tribe camped in and watched as the Woodstock legend took shape.

The multitude heard some of the best rock music ever played. They swallowed some of the worst LSD ever sold. They made love in the grass.

When the rain poured down on them, they smiled and gave the finger to the sky. For three days, they were the citizens of what amounted to the second-largest city in New York State.

They appeared in such huge numbers without warning. Festival promoters had planned first for 60,000, then for 120,000 spectators. No one suspected, until the traffic jams started, that a half-million would come.

John Morris, then the festival's 28-year-old stage manager, looked out at the crowd on Woodstock's opening day. Aug. 15, 1969. He turned to a young wire service reporter with an amazed look on his face. "Something snapped," he said. "Something happened and every kid in the world is here."

High tide

It is 10 years later now.

The '60s became the '70s and the '70s are about to turn into the '80s.

And Woodstock, which seemed the bugler's call to assembly for the youth revolution, has proven to be taps. Woodstock was the counterculture's high-tide line.

Morris, having tried and failed to organize an anniversary festival this summer, sat in a New York office the other day and reflected on Woodstock as a social phenomenon.

"If anything," he observed, "it was the party at the end of school."

Jerry Rubin spent those three days in 1969 closeted in a New York City apartment, trying to finish a revolutionary book called Do It! before reporting to serve a 60-day jail term for "political" activities in Berkeley.

Rubin and Hoffman, both later tried and acquitted on riot incitement charges in connection with the 1968 Chicago Democratic National Convention, had been trying to convince other radicals that the '60s would pave the way for a youth revolution. Hoffman is now a fugitive in a 1974 cocaine-sale case.

Other radicals were skeptical, envisioning a more conventional class struggle, but they went with Hoffman to Woodstock while Rubin stayed behind, pounding his typewriter.

"They came back saying, 'You and Abbie are right,'" Rubin recalled.

"They said, 'We've seen the future (at Woodstock) and it works.'"

Rubin is now 40. He sipped cappuccino and reflected. "It turned out to be the future we haven't gotten to yet. It turned out to be a myth.

"What happened? Well, my gosh, I've been asking myself that question for 10 years. I still don't know the answers."

While the festival was going on, however, its magic could not be denied. Musically, the lineup ranged from Joan Baez, Arlo Guthrie and Jimi Hendrix to the Who, the Grateful Dead and the Jefferson Airplane, but the music was not what made Woodstock Woodstock.

There had been rock festivals before Woodstock, and many others followed, but Woodstock remained unique. The members of its audience were participants, not just spectators. There was the sense that promoters, musicians and the horde were, somehow, equals.

And Woodstock took place in a simple farm field, unlike many other festivals before and since that were held in more structured facilities, like the grand prix race course farther upstate, near Watkins Glen, N.Y.

The promoters billed the festival as "three days of peace and music." The crowd saw to it the promise was kept. First in disbelief, then in admiration, police and medical workers acknowledged the youth tribe had gathered non-violently.

True, three persons died — a drug overdose and two traffic accidents — but the mood, overwhelmingly, was of peace.

News media, confused because the story fit no journalistic stereotype, depicted it, in the words of a particularly distorted United Press International account, as "a sea of mud, sickness and drugs."

Having shared in the rare sense of community that pervaded it, hundreds of thousands of young people left Woodstock seeming to vow collectively never to trust mainstream journalism again.

By day and night, the horde shared everything from marijuana to the discovery of new people from faraway places. There were playgrounds, drug sellers and, despite the size of the mob, a curious sense of tranquillity.

Abbie Hoffman made one attempt to seize a microphone on stage and politicize Woodstock. The crowd cheered when he was thrown off.

But, increasingly, as Friday turned to Saturday, Saturday to Sunday and Sunday to Monday dawn, the young people in the crowd became utterly convinced that by standing a half-million strong, in peace, they had said something about their life style and themselves — their politics in the broadest sense — for which no words would ever be adequate or necessary.

"Woodstock was like a get-together with your friends, only there were lots of them. In the '60s, we knew, or we thought we knew, what we wanted to do with our lives and everybody else's.

"It got to the point where it went from flower power to peace and love and tear down the walls and it seemed to be getting fairly intense and losing sight of everything.

"So I thought, 'Well, why don't we, you know, take a break and just get together with everybody and see how it works. Remove all those things that we're fighting against.'

"Was it the death knell for the culture? I don't think it was the death of it. I think it may have been . . . coming to an end by then. It was to me. Things weren't feeling good by then. People were uptight. There were riots every time you turned around. It stopped feeling good. It stopped being fun and a pleasant way to live."

—Michael Lang, Woodstock's original organizer, now 33 years old.

MORRIS . . . 'the last party'

Woodstock very nearly never happened at all. For most of the first seven months of 1969, Lang, Artie Kornfeld, John Roberts and Joel Rosenman, Woodstock's promoters, searched for an upstate New York community that would let them hold a three-day festival for a crowd of about 60,000.

Originally, the plan had been to stage it near the city of Woodstock itself, which was then, as now, a cultural haven for creative people. But that didn't work out and the promoters turned to the village of Walkill, whose town board evicted the festival less than six weeks before the first notes were supposed to sound.

So they came here and found Max Yasgur, a successful dairy farmer who supported the war in Vietnam and perceived rock music as "a lot of noise." But Yasgur felt a peculiar affection for the young and an apolitical affinity for their life style. Over protests from his neighbors, Yasgur leased the festival his hayfield, a large, gently sloping tract that would prove to have acoustics nearly as good as a natural amphitheater.

That hayfield has since become the chief shrine commemorating the culture Woodstock represented. Buried in the ground are a few concrete anchors that braced the makeshift stage, but nature and dairy farming have reclaimed everything else.

Yasgur lived four years after the festival ended before he died of a heart attack at 53. His widow, Miriam Yasgur Mass, now remarried and living in nearby Monticello, said the festival changed her and her late husband's perceptions of the young.

"Had we known anything about rock music," she recalled, "I don't think Woodstock would have occurred. We thought it was just a lot of noise that a few people were making. The anti-war movement? At the time, we felt that these protests were unfair in the main.

"But then the festival happened and we suddenly realized that all these young people who were there were somebody's kids. They really weren't monsters from outer space simply because they had longer hair or beards.

"I think, personally, it restructured our thinking about a whole segment of the population on whom a lot of us were very down at the time."

Neck redder

It will never be known how many people were there. Estimates range from 300,000 in the Yasgur hayfield and adjoining plots to 750,000, a guess turned in by a police helicopter pilot after a flight over the traffic jams on Woodstock's second day. Some have even suggested that 1.5 million persons were at the festival or actively trying to get there on rods as far as 100 miles away.

There were so many people here that it was difficult not to believe that some great cultural watershed had been reached. They stayed here while the late Gov. Nelson Rockefeller considered, and eventually rejected, petitions to declare the festival site a disaster area and move in the National Guard to disperse the crowd.

For some it became easy to believe that the revolution so eagerly touted by Abbie Hoffman and radicals of the time had, indeed, come. It turned out differently, of course.

That's what John Morris found when he went back to the Catskills to try to put on a Woodstock anniversary festival earlier this year, he made the same discovery. "The much-vaunted Woodstock generation's impact is yet to come," Morris said. "Right now, it's the same farmer with a pitchfork, 10 years older and meaner. The neck is just a different color red; that's all.

"It's the good old born-again death, fire and destruction. I still hear it about the wandering horde of hippies who are gonna come in and trample the corn and rape the daughters or rape the corn and trample the daughters."

It is not only Nixon's Silent Majority that remains, however. The fire of youth, of which Woodstock was a shooting spark, has nearly been extinguished.

"There is a tremendous lack of interest and energy right now," Morris went on. "Like this nuclear business. I don't think they (the protesters) are doing it right. During that period (the '60s), I was involved and active. A lot of people are like me today. They just can't get cranked up."

Jerry Rubin knows it's true.

Still sipping on the cappuccino, Rubin was wearing tan polyester slacks, a zip-up sweater and short hair. "Where did we ever get the idea that if we didn't make the revolution by 1971 or 1972, or by the time we were 30, that we were failures?" he asked himself.

"That is contradicted by historical fact everywhere. I contributed to it myself . . . the whole idea of apocalypse.

"Woodstock is an apocalyptic event. Boom! They love one another and they're free and they're without identity and they're naked and holding hands and there's nirvana.

A long time

"Everybody in the festival still had their conditioning, still had their parents inside of them, and fears and hangups. Still were male chauvinistic. Still were egomaniacal.

"So the festival ends. People go back riding high on that carpet of dreams and you have to deal with your day-in and day-out negativity, limitations and problems.

"The '60s was this breakthrough of illusion and drama. In a sense, what the '70s is is reality saying, 'Hold on now, it's gonna take a long time.' "

When Rex Weiner and Deann Stillman set out several months ago to find out where the children of the '60s had gone, they searched for a title that would instantly, in one or two words, focus book buyers on what they were taling about. They call it Woodstock Census. It will be published this fall.

"The study is going to be very surprising because people never really dropped out," Weiner said.

"People mistook the style for substance. Nixon was a dropout. (The late former President Lyndon) Johnson was a dropout. But everything we (the young) did was totally in the mainstream. All those people who were at Woodstock weren't radicals or dropouts. Very few of them had any coherent political philosophy."

RUBIN . . . 'carpet of dreams'

There will be at least three books out this year commemorating Woodstock and the Woodstock era, Weiner's is the first. Mike Lang will have one and in November, Viking will publish Barefoot in Babylon, the first detailed account by an outsider of the backstage intrigues and organization of Woodstock since the festival occurred.

The author, Robert Spitz, 29, did not attend the festival, ironically enough, but in piecing together the months that preceded the festival and Woodstock itself, Spitz has captured the underlying flavor of the times which, he agrees, have changed.

"It's not so simple any more," he said. "There's no peace and love.

"Kids all lost their innocence at Woodstock and I mourn for it.

"On the beach at Malibu, I'm convinced, is the only place that it (the spirit of Woodstock) really exists any more."

Woodstock, music promoter Bill Graham said in an interview in his San Francisco office, ruined what was still, in 1969, a musical counterculture by attracting the attention of huge corporate giants to what eventually was called the "youth market."

"In those days, I enjoyed 90 percent of it, because we were all experimenting, growing, learning and changing.

"Woodstock was the beginning of what told the big boys (big business) that they gave the orders. Woodstock triggered the youth economy . . . leisure-minded people. Bigtime corporate America looked at Woodstock and said, 'Ah-ha! Ole, ole!'"

In short, Graham and others believe that Woodstock changed the economy of rock music and the youth culture so radically that the entire counterculture was subsumed, totally coopted by corporate economics.

""Woodstock was a portrayal of a kind of decency that existed among young people at that time and I don't think that's had a lasting effect. It hasn't done anything for our generation.

"Woodstock was not, in any way, shape or form, in my mind, indicative of the time to come, because the time to come was boring as hell. Nothing exciting has happened.

"If Woodstock was a touchstone for a new direction, then it went 'blumph' right afterwards."

Today's Markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market advanced sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today. Among the 14 stock groups within the composite index, eleven gained, led by real estate and construction. Golds had the largest of the three declines. Advances outnumbered declines 200 to 171 with 205 issues unchanged. The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Canadian Long Island Petroleums Ltd. will cease to trade at the close Tuesday and will be replaced at the opening Wednesday with shares of First Calgary Petroleums Ltd. Canadian Long Island has merged with Caltor Petroleums, whose shareholders now control the company. The company name has been changed to First Calgary Petroleums.

New York

The New York stock market extended its gains across a broad front today, shrugging off adverse economic news. The market's rally extended through most sectors, and over-all gaining issues swamped losers by a margin of more than 3-to-1. Large institutional investors have recently increased buying of stocks — apparently in the belief interest rates may fall, thus reducing the return on other types of investments.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of trading today. The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 475.8, up 5.8. Industrials and oils firmed while banks were mixed and golds eased. Canadian shares were mixed.

Ford planning layoffs

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. plans to reduce its assembly line production to 640 vehicles daily from 768 starting Sept. 10, resulting in the layoff of about 650 workers.

The reduced line speed was blamed on high inventories of big cars and vans in the United States. The Oakville plant assembles the family-size Ford LTD. and Econoline vans.

Cattle

There was no sale at the Calgary public stockyard today.

Normal trading will resume Tuesday.

VANCOUVER

Prices were mixed in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange with a volume of 3,643,458 shares during the first four hours of trading.

Simpsons-Bay merger complete

TORONTO (UPC) — The merger of Simpsons Ltd. with The Bay was approved by Simpsons shareholders and the amalgamation has taken place, Hudson's Bay Company announced.

The Bay said in a statement that Simpsons shareholders who elected the cash option will receive $3.56 for each share of Simpsons. Those who elected the share option will receive one Hudson's Bay ordinary share for each eight Simpsons shares.

Simpsons will be delisted by the Toronto Stock Exchange. The Bay said that Simpsons will retain its own identity and will operate separately from The Bay.

Inflation's effect on investment: an analysis

By ALLEN GREENSPAN

NEW YORK — In the halcyon days of the 1950's and 1960's, business investment decisions seemed appropriately focused on longer-term payoffs. There seemed to be nothing in the then perceived distant future that would significantly alter the type of economic environment that would prevail.

Hence, business did not hesitate to commit itself to projects whose cash returns stretched into the distant future. This attitude, however, changed abruptly as inflation gripped the world's economies in the 1970's and created increasing uncertainty and risk for business ventures.

A much higher rate of discount is applied to unstable, inflation-generated profits than to those accruing from normal business operations. Furthermore, higher rates of discount have an exaggerated impact on longer-lived investments compared with those that promise quick cash payoffs.

Thus, inflation not only introduces greater uncertainty into the rate-of-return calculations but also skews the investment pattern toward shorter-lived projects on which the uncertainty is assuredly less. As a consequence, it is not surprising that in recent years business capital investments have become increasingly concentrated in assets with quick cash payoffs.

Allen Greenspan is a U.S. business consultant and former chairman of President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers. This article was written for the New York Times.

The average life of investments made during the early 1960's for nonresidential fixed capital was 21 years, with structures having a life expectancy of about 32 years and producers' durable equipment 13 years. Not only have the average lives of equipment and structures themselves fallen, but the mix has also shifted toward equipment and away from structures.

This has produced a marked decline in the average life of all capital investment from the more than 21 years of the late 1950's and early 1960's to less than 18 years thus far in 1979.

Part of the shortfall in construction reflects the stretchout of utilities expansion owing to regulatory delays. These shortfalls, of course, cannot be attributed solely to frayed business confidence, but delays are far more costly when discount factors and interest rates are relatively high.

Even outside the utilities area, construction has been slow in recovering. Expansion of manufacturing capacity has fallen short of the pattern in earlier business cycles.

Perhaps more ominous than the foreshortening of the capital investment horizon is the shift in research and development budgets toward quick-payoff "development" projects. Industry-financed research, basic and applied, which accounted for almost 34 percent of company research and development budgets in 1960, amounted to only 25 percent of such spending last year.

While inflation-engendered risk may have had its most visible impact on capital investment and the level of economic activity, no less important has been its effect on the economy's efficiency.

High-risk premiums hobble the free market's ability to adjust to perceived longer-term trends. They dull the sensitivity of the supply-demand adjustment process and lead too often to brittle and unstable economic adjustments.

In particular they are thwarting the industrial world's adjustment to sharply higher energy prices. If risk premiums were low, development of longtime synthetic fuels would already be well advanced (without government subsidies). But the payoffs are too far away on such projects to gain unsubsidized support at current levels of risk.

Under normal risk conditions, energy-saving equipment would likewise be highly profitable. And, in anticipation of large profit payoffs a decade and more hence, large new research and development efforts in the area of energy conservation would move forward.

High-risk premiums are blunting the long-term adjustment processes, in the energy area as elsewhere, that are essential to the functioning of a free enterprise system. They are "blindsiding" the market system and preventing its adjustment processes from addressing the distant future.

In the same way that futures prices adjust supply and demand for storable commodities for periods of one or two years, it is risk premiums that link the longer-term future supply and demand forces to the current balance.

Thus, economic policy must focus on reducing these abnormally high, inflation-created risk premiums. They have imparted a private decision-making atmosphere that gives short shrift to long-term benefits and costs and undue emphasis to the short run.

Advanced industrial economies rest on an infrastructure of long-lived assets. Unless private investments again reach beyond the short-term horizon, our economic system will continue to lose its productive efficiency.

Imperial record for exploration

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. reports the company's level of capital and exploration spending reached a record $367 million in the first six months of this year.

During the first six months, the company participated in drilling 84 development wells and 84 exploratory wells in Western Canada. Of the exploratory wells, 23 found oil and 39 found gas including four oil wells and 19 gas wells in the Elmworth area on the Alberta-British Columbia border.

The company reported it spent $53 million to acquire rights to 151,000 net acres in the first half of the year, including 87,000 net acres in Elmworth.

Imperial is drilling two wells off Canada's east coast, one in the Flemish Pass, 450 kilometres east of St. John's, Nfld., and the other in the Davis Strait off Baffin Island.

Wall Street's hottest deal is a seat on exchange

NEW YORK (AP) — What Wall Street investment has more than quadrupled in the past year, outperforming gold, real estate and all the gambling stocks?

The answer, strange as it may sound, is a seat on the New York Stock Exchange.

Last summer, the price of a Big Board membership was as low as $48,000, and feature writers were trotting out the old story about stock exchange seats being cheaper than New York City taxi medallions.

But by late last week the price was $210,000, up 337 per cent from a year ago and the highest it has been in more than seven years.

That's still far below the levels it reached in the late 1960s, when the record of $515,000 was set. But those in a position to buy exchange memberships clearly are seeing some promise for the future beyond the well-publicized problems the NYSE and the stock market have faced in recent years.

It must be noted two factors that don't involve stocks are contributing, by all accounts, to the rise in seat prices.

One is the Big Board's plans to start a futures-contracts trading facility, the New York Futures Exchange, or NYFE for short, early next year (people at the exchange refer to it by its acronym, so it comes out "the knife.").

Futures — contracts for future delivery of commodities, currencies, or securities such as treasury bills — have been a hot investment vehicle through much of the inflation-ridden 1970s.

And owners of New York Stock Exchange seats are to get a special opportunity to purchase seats on the NYFE for $5,000, rather than the initial price of $20,000 set for other buyers.

A second source of interest is the Big Board's plans to get into options trading. Those intentions, announced long ago, have been in limbo since the Securities and Exchange Commission imposed a ban on expansion of the options market two years ago.

Lately, however, there has been increased speculation the SEC might be ready to end the moratorium and let the NYSE join the Chicago Board Options Exchange, the American Stock Exchange and three regional exchanges in the options business.

The conjecture is that the SEC might be ready to act as early as this coming week.

All this could lead to dramatic changes at the NYSE — in the metaphor used by one industry observer late last week, a transformation from a specialty retailer to a department store of finance.

In addition to those expectations, some Wall Streeters suggested the rise in seat prices might even reflect a touch of optimism about the future of the stock market itself.

Even though many obituaries are being written for the market these days, the NYSE did have by far its busiest year ever in 1978, trading 7.2 billion shares, compared with the previous record of 5.36 billion in 1976.

"Seat prices can sometimes be a leading indicator of volume and stock prices," said Robert Stovall at Dean Witter Reynolds.

Stovall recalled that his past efforts to chart the relationship between the fluctuations of seat prices and the subsequent behavior of stock prices showed a less-than-perfect correlation.

Nevertheless, he said, "seat prices are a good indicator of optimism, or the lack of same, about the future of this industry."

Okanagan plans rights offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. will make a rights offering for a new class of preference shares which the company expects will raise about $4.6 million, according to president John W. Pitts.

The offering, which will be made to holders of ordinary shares in the fall, will provide additional funds to be applied for general corporate purposes and to retire outstanding preferred and third preferred shares, he said.

Chrysler seeks Canadian aid

TORONTO (CP) — Chrysler Canada Ltd. has asked the federal and Ontario governments for financial assistance to help keep the company afloat.

The move parallels an appeal by Chrysler Corp., the U.S. parent company, which last week asked Washington for a $1-billion loan.

"We had discussions this afternoon," Larry Grossman, Ontario industry minister, said Friday. "They were preliminary talks only and Chrysler officials outlined their problems."

He said the Ontario cabinet hadn't had time to think of an appropriate response to Chrysler's appeal.

"But you can take it for granted that we are very interested in seeing Chrysler in Windsor survive and prosper," he said.

The company, which suffered a $31-million loss last year, employs 14,500 workers, most at two major plants in Windsor, Ont.

A senior official with the federal government's department of industry, trade and commerce confirmed discussions have been held with top Chrysler officials.

Chrysler refused to comment on the aid request.

New group fighting for small business

TORONTO (CP) — John Bulloch took it all in stride when a rival to his powerful Canadian Federation of Independent Business came into existence last week.

The new group, called the Canadian Organization of Small Business, was started by engineers Daniel Horigan and James Conrad, both of whom worked for Bulloch's federation before departing to form their own lobby.

They are not likely to make much of a dent in the 55,000-member federation which Bulloch founded and heads as president.

Bulloch said there was an amicable parting with his two executives — Horigan was his assistant — and he wishes them well.

Horigan left the federation last month, Conrad two years ago. They had told Bulloch of their plans.

In fact, Bulloch said he welcomes the new lobby, which has vowed to concentrate its efforts on getting a better tax break from governments for small business.

"We could have 50 groups fighting national revenue," said Bulloch. "Any kind of pressure on them is a good thing."

"After all, there are 600,000 small businesses in Canada and the problem is to find them and get them involved in this kind of pressure."

The new organization is the third such group to spin off from the federation, one Montreal based and another in British Columbia. But they lasted only a short time.

In the United States, Bulloch's counterpart federation has spun off about 25 splinter groups, but only four remain.

He said most of these groups die because they cannot build up membership fast enough.

When Bulloch started the federation, he had to rely on capital from the family business to keep solvent. "Even at 4,000 members, we were barely able to pay the bills."

Expectations rising

VANCOUVER (CP) — Expectations for the business outlook for the next six months in the province have reached a new high, says a businss trends survey released Friday by the Employers' Council of British Columbia.

Sixty-five per cent of the executives surveyed reported that business conditions were good during the first half of the year and the same proportion anticipate a continuation of this for the remainder of 1979.

The employment picture also looks brighter. Close to half the respondents reported increases in the number of persons they employed during the first half of the year and 42 per cent plan to employ more persons during the next six months.

The largest increases in employment will occur in the primary sectors of forestry and mining, plus the service sector.

Some of the suggestions made in the survey by businessmen included the need for policies to develop secondary and high technology industries, and policies on the need for more research and development.

The council's survey is conducted semi-annually and represents the opinions of senior executives of 173 B.C. businesses.

Rights branch opposes vote proposals

The B.C. Human Rights branch says that prisoners and people with mental and emotional problems should not be deprived of the vote.

A six-page brief, submitted to chief electoral officer, Ken Morton, takes issue with proposals in the royal commission report on electoral reform that would disenfranchise the mentally ill, prisoners and people in prison awaiting appeal or sentencing.

The brief expresses concern that anyone who is a patient in a provincial mental health facility, observation unit or psychiatric unit could be disqualified to vote.

"Some people voluntarily commit themselves to institutions for help in some area. The fact that people may be undergoing counselling or treatment for a specific problem does not mean they are incapable of exercising their democratic rights to vote," says the brief.

The human rights brief also points out that it would be unfair to deprive prisoners of the vote.

"The judicial process in our country imposes a punishment deemed appropriate to the offence. It is not within the tradition of justice to sanction punishment for the same crime twice."

STOL study Aug. 22

A federal-provincial report on STOL (short take-off and landing) aircraft in Victoria or other parts of B.C. will be studied by a joint committee Aug. 22.

The contents will not be disclosed until the responsible ministers at each government level have examined it, said a statement from the provincial department of transportation, communications and highways.

Questions to be determined were feasibility of building a short takeoff and landing base near downtown Victoria, the commercial prospects for de Havilland Dash 7 aircraft on a Victoria-Vancouver STOL service and potential for Dash 7 service on other B.C. routes.

A number of landing sites have been considered, but engineering investigation has been concentrated on the frequently-mentioned Work Point area of Esquimalt.

The provincial government, local air carriers and municipal interest in STOL has been shown, with some proponents citing the advantages over existing harbor floatplane service.

But following a demonstration flight last week Victoria Mayor Mike Young was pessimistic about having a STOL landing place in the urban area.

STOL should be more cost-effective than conventional airports for many routes, with the potential for increasing air transport service in some communities, the ministry of transport said.

Between Victoria and Vancouver it was suggested STOL aircraft would be more reliable and safe, help reduce congestion in harbors, provide the start for STOL service elsewhere in the province using Dash 7s, and reduce terminal capacity problems at Victoria international airport or other airports.

Development costs, it was noted, are a federal responsibility.

The ministry also said costs of improving airport facilities in B.C. has been high or unfeasible because of difficult terrain and weather.

"The Dash 7 with its short field capability and steep approach angle could overcome such limitations to a large extent."

Dash 7 is quiet, economical and reliable, with low fuel consumption by its four turboprop engines. It can be built in 50-passenger airline configuration, or in combination with freight cargo, with or without pressurization.

A drawback to the plane is its high price, about $4.5 million.

Harmac Situation was normal

NANAIMO (CP) — A feared shutdown at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac pulp and paper mill was averted Saturday when forest industry tradesmen pickets, who made a brief showing Friday, didn't return.

Stan Shewaga, president of Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC), Local 8, said union executives late Friday asked the pickets to remove their line.

"As soon as we found out the picket line was there, we asked them to remove it," Shewaga said.

Brian Smith, Harmac's industrial relations officer, said Friday's mill operations continued without interruption.

Smith said an information picket line was set up Friday when a "mixture of dissident employees" discovered Harmac supervisors had replaced tradesmen involved in a 24-hour session to protest their recent wage settlement.

Irate PPWC tradesmen joined tradesmen from the International Woodworkers of America and the Canadian Paperworkers Union in walking off the job at mills along the coast, on Vancouver Island and in the Interior as far north as Prince George.

The tradesmen, who call themselves the British Columbia Forest Industry Tradesmen's Association and claim 5,000 members in the three unions, feel they are entitled to the same wage revision granted benchmen or saw filers.

Benchmen were given 70 cents an hour on top of the across-the-board 90-cents-an-hour increase in the first year of the two-year contract, while tradesmen got a 30-cent revision. The tradesmen said both groups should have received a revision of $1.50 an hour.

The picket line at Harmac was composed of employees from the yard and shipping departments and the machine room, Smith said.

Harmac has not met with the union to discuss the tradesmen's 24-hour work stoppage.

$28 Million PR payoff by Tories charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New Democratic Party MP says the Progressive Conservative government has rewarded a key worker in the party's federal election campaign by giving his public relations firm a $28 million advertising contract.

Mark Rose, MP for Mission-Port Moody, said in an interview Sunday that the contract, announced in a recent government news release, was awarded to Media Buying Services Ltd. of Toronto.

The MP said the firm is owned by Peter Swain, who he called the captain of the party's May 22 federal election campaign and that the contract was paying off Swain for his work.

"First they talk about their policy of open government, then they criticize the way Information Canada was run by the Liberals, and now they want to manage all the government news."

'Living proof' of hospital cut

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A New Westminster hospital worker due to be laid off this Friday has launched a petition protesting "outrageous" budget cuts in British Columbia's health care system.

Mike Parker, 27, an operating room aide for one year, will be bumped right out the Royal Columbian Hospital door Friday because he does not have enough seniority to transfer to a different department.

Parker said he is sickened when he thinks that Health Minister Bob McClelland has said that no layoffs would come about as a result of financial restraints.

"I'm living proof that layoffs are occuring," he said.

Parker said more than 1,000 hospital workers and patients have signed his petition, which he plans to present to McClelland.

Parker is one of 90 persons facing layoff at the hospital, at which all department budgets have been cut by 10 per cent.

McClelland has ordered all hospitals in B.C. to hold their budget increases to 7.5 per cent more than 1978 levels.

Meanwhile, the government is mailing cheques totalling $13 million to B.C. hospitals to cover deficits left over from the last fiscal year, said a health ministry spokesman.

He said an additional $2.6 million will be mailed out in the next two weeks, along with normal year-end adjustment payments of about $7.8 million.

The short end of the stick

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Difficulty gathering evidence is making West Vancouver's pooper scooper bylaw hard to enforce.

"You're not going to find people running around with little baggies of poop and storing them for three months until the case comes up," Lloyd Taylor, chief bylaw officer, says.

However, Taylor maintains that the two-year-old bylaw, which forbids dog owners to allow their pets to poop anywhere but on the owner's property, is still effective.

PNE to go ahead as workers settle

VANCOUVER (CP) — A contract dispute that threatened to force cancellation of the annual Pacific National Exhibition was resolved Sunday when 600 union employees voted 76 per cent to accept a new two-year agreement.

The exhibition's board of directors approved the agreement shortly after.

A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents the employees, said a cost-of-living increase included in the contract but will only take effect if the inflation rate exceeds 14.5 per cent in one year. The clause was included despite opposition from the exhibition's board of directors earlier.

The agreement also includes a dental plan, effective in September, and a 10-per-cent wage increase for part-time workers raising their wage to $4.29 an hour.

Full-time employees receive a 7.5-per-cent wage increase for a new hourly rate of $6.74.

Erwin Swangard also told the union no action would be taken against union employees who engaged in walkouts during the negotiating period.

Accuracy Bob's payoff

TORONTO (CP) — Accuracy — not speed — resulted in victory for Bob Gilmour of Pitt Meadows, as his antique aircraft edged 21 others in a week-long race to Toronto from British Columbia.

Gilmour, flying a 1946 Fleet Canuck, was correct to the minute on estimated times of arrival for all stopovers but one.

Gilmour paid tribute to his wife's navigating and a good-luck charm, their 18-month-old son who went along for the 3,200-kilometre ride.

Cool, blustery start for Western Games

SASKATOON (CP) — A blustery 54 kph wind chilled spectators and participants alike at Sunday's opening of the second Western Canada Summer Games.

Some 6,400 onlookers filled the city's small Gordie Howe Bowl, normally used for football games, to watch sprinter Joanne McTaggart light the Olympic-style flame.

Saskatchewan premier Allan Blakeney declared the week-long Games officially open after lauding the city and 2,000 volunteers for their work. Some 1,700 elite-level athletes from the four Western provinces will compete in 23 Olympic events, many using the Games as a stepping stone to international competition.

Government involvement in the Games is large. Saskatchewan contributed $2.1 million of the $6.4 million in capital expenditures for the Games that included a $5.5 million fieldhouse. The city shelled out $3.2 million and private contributors coughed up $1.1 million. About half the $1.75 million in operating costs is being borne by the province, with another $125,000 coming from lottery sources.

Saskatchewan played host to the Western Games both times they have been staged. The first games were held in Regina in 1975. Saskatoon was awarded these games 18 months ago after submitting the only serious bid.

However, organizors say there should be no similar problem for the 1983 Games. Calgary and Saanich, B.C. have both submitted bids. The Games are held every four years, the year before the Olympics.

Competition started today with the men's and women's basketball, canoeing, diving, fencing, field hockey, men's and women's team handball, track and field, water polo and men's volleyball.

Taylor and Brill star in track trials

DEBBIE CAMPBELL
. . . named as alternate

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Silvio Leonard of Cuba did it almost effortlessly, but for Toronto's Angela Taylor it was the culmination of a year's hard work.

Both athletes had a lot to show for their efforts during the weekend, however, as they emerged the only triple selections to the Americas team that will compete in the World Cup of Athletics at Montreal on Aug. 24-26.

Both Leonard and Taylor were chosen at the 100- and 200-metre distances and for the 4x100-metre relays.

The World Cup will feature the top track and field athletes from three countries — the United States, East Germany and the Soviet Union — and five continental teams — the Americas, Europe, Africa, Asia and Oceania, with all events being finals.

The Americas used the two-day trials at Laval University to help in the process of selecting its Cup representatives. Leonard and Taylor headed a list dominated by 18 Canadian and 15 Cuban selections.

Jamaica, led by 400-metre man Colin Bradford, earned eight berths, while Brazil added five, including triple jump star Joao de Oliveira.

But the weekend belonged to Taylor, Leonard and Canadian high jumper Debbie Brill of Aldergrove, who earned a spot on the team with a Commonwealth record-shattering jump of 1.94 metres, third-best in the world this year.

While Brill made it look easy, Taylor took her two events after much toil and sweat.

"I worked hard all year for this," Taylor said. "I was out on the track practically every day preparing for it. No one can argue with my selection to the team, because that's the second time I've beaten Silvia Chavas."

Taylor had also defeated Chavas at the Pan-American Games, winning a bronze medal.

In duplicating the exploit in the 100 metres Saturday, Taylor broke a Canadian record set by Patty Loverock, being clocked at 11.20 seconds to eclipse Loverock's mark of 11.34.

Although there will be no protests over the selection of Taylor, there are many who will question the selection methods of Canadian officials, who picked some athletes for the team who were defeated in the trials.

Among the disappointed winners had to be be a pair of westerners, Debbie Campbell of Victoria and Harold Heer of Vancouver.

Campbell won the women's 800-meter event on Saturday, finishing ahead of Coquitlam's Anne Mackie-Morelli, who was named to the Americas team while Campbell was listed as an alternate. Campbell's time was 2:05.6. Mackie-Morelli was clocked in 2:06.0.

Bruce Simpson of Toronto was picked as the team's pole-vaulter although he finished second to Heer Saturday, clearing five metres while Heer reached 5.10.

Debbie Scott of Victoria finished second Sunday in the women's 1,500 metres, trailing Britt McRoberts of Richmond by about eight seconds and 16 seconds ahead of Mexico's Carmen Garduno.

On Saturday, two Victorians placed fourth in their events, Wendy Davies in the women's 400 hurdles and Harold Willers in the hammer-throw. Phil Olsen of Nanaimo was fifth in the javelin event.

Although Leonard had appeared to have stiff competition from Hasely Crawford of Trinidad-Tobago and Gay Abraham of Panama in the 100 metres, he left them finishing fourth and sixth, respectively.

On Sunday, Leonard burst from the start line and was never headed in covering 200 metres in 20.54 seconds.

The 18 spots filled by Canadians on the Americas roster went beyond even the most optimistic predictions.

"I figured that we might get 15," said Montreal's Larry Eldridge of the Canadian Track and Field Association.

Konopacki's job plus for Budgets

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

All four Victoria Budget pitchers contributed strong, route-going performances to the team's four-game sweep of an exhibition men's softball series with Portland Ray Bristowe, but the one field manager Harvey Stevenson fancied was Andy Konopacki's extra-inning struggle with Virg Harstad Saturday night.

Konopacki yielded seven hits to Harstad's three but took a nine-inning, 1-0 victory when second baseman Carl Walker scored the game's only run on a wild pitch with the bases loaded and two out.

Earlier, Dave Ruthowsky scattered five hits for a 6-0 victory at Royal Athletic Park.

On Sunday, Dave Wilson spaced eight hits for a 5-1 triumph and Budgets completed the sweep of their final "super series" of the season when southpaw Mark Smith racked up a three-hit, 1-0 victory with the help of John Green's leadoff home run in the second inning.

But the "Packer" provided Stevenson with "a big plus" as the Pam-American Games and defending Canadian champions completed a somewhat-exhausting 89-game summer campaign.

Now its on to the playoffs, starting with the provincial tournament in Port Alberni next weekend.

Konopacki, because he once hung his hat briefly in professional company, did not accompany Budgets to the Pan-Am Games and on the eight-game exhibition swing that preceded the trip to Puerto Rico. As a result, the veteran righthander did not pitch competitively for almost a month.

Konopacki was ultrasharp, especially in the late innings when he bailed out of trouble three times with crucial strikeouts. In the seventh, Victoria centre fielder went a long way to haul down a drive by Al Stautz. Underwood got to the ball but, in pulling up to avoid the fence, dropped the ball.

Stautz wound up on third, with nobody out. Pinch-hitter Ray Freels was out on an infield roller with Stautz wisely holding his bag. Konopacki then struck out Harstad and Jerry Hall, both dangerous hitters.

Craig Webster led off Portland's eighth with a double, but Konopacki retired the side after intentionally giving Steve Newell the only walk Portland took in nine innings.

Pinch-hitter Carl Lane led off Portland's nine with a single, but the Packer again set down the side 1-2-3. In each of the last three innings, Victoria's defense supplied a big assist with three great players, two by shortstop Bob Holness and one by first baseman Bob Walton.

"Andy's been a big man for us in past years in the playoffs," was Stevenson's final summation, "and it's nice to know he's ready again."

Channel fog shrouds Admiral's Cup scene

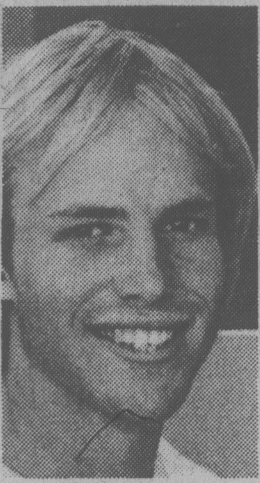
PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — The American yachts Imp and Aries, and an Irish boat were reported among front-runners Sunday night as fog in the English Channel cloaked the long-distance Fastnet race, climax of the Admiral's Cup series.

Observers said the two U.S. boats were vying for the lead with Ireland's Golden Apple of the Sun. Their showing in the 605-mile Fastnet, last of five Admiral's Cup races, gives the United States an execellent chance of winning the Cup for the first time in 10 years.

The race, which started Saturday off the Isle of Wight and is expected to end Tuesday or Wednesday, counts triple points toward the championship.

Ireland leads the standings with 649 points after three inshore races and the 220-mile channel race. The Americans are close behind with 635 with Australia third at 626.

City rowers earn praise after display at Henley



PAT WALTER
. . . collects gold

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — Because the host St. Catharines Rowing Club has won the Maple Leaf Trophy so often for so long, the Canadian Amateur Rowing Association has decided to retire the silverware from Royal Henley competition and award it to the Ontario club.

St. Kitt's Alumni has replaced it with the Efficiency Trophy, won Sunday by Brockville, Ont., for registering the best percentage score at the regatta.

But while Brockville claimed the new silverware and St. Catharines once again emerged, easily, as the aggregate point winner in the 97th regatta, Henley observers were looking to Victoria as the rising power in Canadian rowing.

Victoria City rowers came up with a tremendous showing, the best ever by British Columbia's capital.

Victoria's 19-member squad collected seven gold medals, five silver, three bronze and made it to 19 finals during the four-day event.

Overall, Victoria finished third with 170 points, behind only St. Catharines, winning the aggregate for the 19th consecutive year with 337, and Hamilton Leander, with 176.

An excellent showing considering the 19 competed against 1,200 competitors and over 80 other clubs from Canada, the United States, Mexico and Australia.

New York AC was the top American club with 126 points and sixth place overall.

Leading the NYAC charge were Larry Klecatsky, 38, and Jim Dietz, 30.

In all, Klecatsky won five medals at this Henley, raising his career Henley total to 47 while Dietz, the 1979 bronze medallist in the single at the Pan-American Games, won four to increase his Henley medal total to 45.

Trice Cameron, 27, of Ottawa Ridley captured the senior women's single as she came from behind to edge Janice Mason of Victoria City by less than a deck.

The former executive director of the Canadian Cross-Country Ski Association sprinted the last 300 metres of the 1,000-metre race to overhaul Janice, who had held the lead until that point.

Cheryl Mason of Victoria finished third.

Victoria's Doug Moffatt and Wynn Wright also picked up a bronze in the senior men's 145 double, finishing behind St. Catharines and Lake Washington of Seattle.

University of Victoria won its third silver medal by finishing second in the senior men's four with coxswain. UVic's lightweight eight also reached a final and finished fifth.

Saturday, Pat Walter spearheaded Victoria City's medal parade by winning the association single and a bronze in the 500-metre open singles.

The Mason sisters, Lisa Roy, Kathleen Alexander and cox Sharon Bennett added another gold by winning the quadruple with cox in three minutes, 30.57 seconds.

Vic City's Sheelagh Lean and Alix Peden also collected silver in the lightweight women's doubles and Phil Haggerty, Moffatt, Keith Battersby and John Edwards finished fourth in the men's 155-pound quad sculls.

Thompson provides exciting swim finish

EDMONTON (CP) — It happened on the last day of the 1979 Canadian national swimming championships, when Dan Thompson of Toronto broke his own Canadian and Commonwealth record in men's 100-metre butterfly.

Until his sensational swim Sunday, officials, coaches and swimmers were struggling for explanations why the excitement and glory of record-setting were almost absent from the four-day championships.

There had been few surprises in the 34 events with a total of 380 of Canada's best swimmers competing. Most pre-competition favorites coasted to victory, falling short of their personal best times.

But Thompson, a 23-year-old University of Toronto student, provided an exciting finish to the championships with his 54.89-second swim in the 100-metre butterfly final Sunday night, breaking the previous record of 55.04 he set in the Commonwealth Games last year.

Nancy Garapick of Halifax was the top medalist with four golds and one silver. Her fourth gold was in women's 100-metre butterfly Sunday with a time of 1:02.74, her personal best. Peter Szmidt of Edmonton was the top male medalist with three golds and one bronze. His third gold came Sunday in the 1,500-metre freestyle.

In one of the few upsets of the championships, Marco Veilleux of Montreal beat Graham Smith of Edmonton in men's 200-metre breaststroke. Veilleux had a time of 2:23.81, his personal best, while Smith, who holds the Canadian record of 2:19.42, only managed a time of 2:23.96.

Sager shatters archery records

EDMONTON (CP) — Stewart Bowman of Edmonton recorded 1,308 of a possible 1,400 Sunday to close within nine points of the 2,400 aggregate point total held by leader Bill Fordham of Mississauga, Ont., in men's professional class in the 1979 Canadian archery championships.

In the women's unlimited field, Rose Ann Jackson of Lindsay, Ont., set a Canadian and open record with a 491 out of 600.

Peter Sager of Victoria set Canadian and open records in cadet boys' barebow standing. He has an aggregate score of 1,710 out of 3,240.

Patriot streak ended by Rams

By Associated Press

Pat Haden's 18-yard touchdown pass to Rod Phillips in the first period and Vince Ferragamo's 16-yard scoring strike to Preston Dennard in the third led Los Angeles Rams to a 15-3 National Football League exhibition victory Sunday over New England Patriots.

In another afternoon exhibition, New York Jets beat Houston Oilers 26-14, while Seattle Seahawks downed Dallas Cowboys 27-17 in a night contest.

The Los Angeles defence limited the Patriots to a 31-yard field goal by David Posey in the second quarter. The Rams' other points came when Elvis Peacock blocked a punt out of New England's end zone in the second period. The loss ended New England's eight-game winning streak in pre-season play.

Koosman capable of handling problem

By The Canadian Press

The dictionary defines a troubleshooter as someone who locates the causes of trouble and makes needed repairs. Meet Jerry Koosman, who is usually the cause of his own trouble, but generally knows how to fix it.

"If I pitched as hard out of trouble, I probably wouldn't go nine (innings)," the veteran lefthander said Sunday after hurling a 10-hit shutout — the major-league record for a nine-inning shutout is 14 hits — as Minnesota Twins edged Oakland A's 1-0 in an American League contest.

"When I get into trouble, I'm more of a power pitcher. When I'm out of trouble, I go more with control."

Koosman, 14-10, had plenty of control in pitching his first AL shutout. He didn't walk anyone, but nine Oakland singles and a double, plus an error by right fielder Hosken Powell, kept him in hot water most of the time.

Besides the 35-year-old Koosman, two rookie pitchers were in the AL spotlight. Chicago's Ross Baumgarten fired a two-hitter as the White Sox blanked Toronto Blue Jays 7-0 before dropping the nightcap 7-5, and Craig Chamberlain spun a six-hitter in his major-league debut as Kansas City Royals thumped Detroit Tigers 7-1.

Meanwhile in the National League, Chicago Cubs relief ace Bruce Sutter just keeps rolling along. The league's top fireman came on strong again Sunday, gaining his 28th save as the Cubs defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-3.

(Results on page 12).

Athletics' offense carries the load

The pitching of Ken Fox and Ray Beveridge carried Elks-Athletics to a solid second-place finish in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League's regular season, but the throwers were treated most disrespectfully by Port Angeles Telecable in the playoffs.

As a result, it was the offense that carried the favored Athletics into the league final at the weekend.

Port Angeles batters punched across 15 runs in four games but the A's scored 22 at Central Park and won the best-of-five semi-final series 3-1. Telecable defeated Fox 5-2 in the series opener but the Victoria squad rebounded with a 3-2 win Saturday and then finished Port Angeles off for the season with 9-6 and 8-2 victories Sunday.

Alf Hass smacked a three-run double to get the A's started and Bob Bugslag had three hits in the 9-6 game while Lou Vermette drove in three with a pair of singles in the decider.

Athletics will meet the winners of the Seaboard-Juan de Fuca series in the league final. Seaboard leads 1-0 with the second game scheduled Wednesday.

McGinnis all-stars will face a Heywood Avenue select Tuesday, starting at 6:30 p.m., in the McGinnis League's annual "Fan Appreciation Night" at Central Park.

Strandlund Brothers defeated Labatts 4-2 Sunday to take the lead in the McGinnis League's three-team, round-robin consolation series. John Kilgore checked in with a seven-hit performance to gain credit for the victory.

At Heywood, Jack Mears Realty swept a pair from Remco, 7-5 and 5-3 Saturday. Remcos suffered another loss, 11-4, at the hands of Brentwood Merchants on Sunday. In another Sunday game, Capital Builders beat Ingraham Hotel 6-2 behind Marv Carver's three-hitter.

Wide-open chase

ZELTWEG, Austria (Reuter) — The Formula One racing drivers' championship chase is still wide open following Sunday's Austrian Grand Prix, won by Australian Alan Jones in the all-conquering Williams.

In an unexplained move by the Swiss race commissioner, the car was impounded following the race and ordered sent to London to test it for "engine irregularities" next Wednesday.

The 32-year-old sped to his second consecutive Grand Prix victory, having won in West Germany two weeks ago, and the third win in a row for the Saudi-funded Williams team.

Jones has no chance of winning the drivers' title under the new scoring system in which a driver's four best results in each half of the season are counted.

Because Jones did nothing much in the first half of the season, he is out of contention even if he wins the four remaining Grand Prix races.

The new system was introduced to prevent a driver having the championship sewn up early in the season, thus reducing interest.

Jody Scheckter of South Africa picked up three points for his fourth-place finish to lead with 38 points.

But his young Ferrari team-mate, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., has crept to within six points of Scheckter after his second-place finish Sunday and must rate as a big threat.

Also at 32 points is Jacques Laffite of France, who improved his position Sunday by overtaking Scheckter on the last lap to finish third and pick up four points.

"Got a table for two near the exit?"

Castaways edge rivals by two runs

Oak Bay, Castaways and Albion collected victories during 40-overs matches in Victoria and District Cricket Association competition during the weekend.

Oak Bay topped Alcos by three wickets at Windsor Park and Castaways edged Cowichan by two runs at Beacon Hill Park on Sunday.

Albion defeated Incogs by four runs Saturday at Beacon Hill.

Scores and top bowling and batting performances:

ALCOS (91, all out): Batting — Tony Lane 19, Sandy Hutchison 15, Bob McKay 14; Bowling — Hutchison 3 for 30, McKay 2 for 14. OAK BAY (92 for 7): Batting — Stan Laing 20, Jan Aten 18, Brian Tetlow 12, not out; Bowling — Eric Richards 3 for 13, Sandy Colquhoun 4 for 17.

CASTAWAYS (208 for 2): Batting — Dave Clarke 103, not out; Bowling — Bob Beecher 2 for 44. COWICHAN (206): Batting — Tim Lord 114, not out; Bowling — Ken Aziz 1 for 33.

INCOGS (165). ALBION (169): Batting — Don Hughes 69, not out.

Erith tops drivers

John Erith, driving a Mini Cooper "S", emerged with the over-all title at the Victoria Motor Sports Club's fourth sprint event in a series of five Sunday on the four-fifths of a mile road course at Western Speedway.

Erith posted a time of 40.338 seconds to set a new record while winning the "D" improved sedan class and also earned a victory in the "F" sports racing class with a time of 41.537.

Other class winners:

Damage to roof won't halt racing

REGINA (CP) — Thoroughbred racing will go on as scheduled at Exhibition Track, Aug. 31-Oct. 15, despite the loss of most of the grandstand roof in a severe windstorm last week, Kevin McCusker, executive director of the Saskatchewan Jockey Club, has announced.

Total storm damage is estimated at $300,000.

Blizzard, Fury qualify with a curious windup

By The Canadian Press

For a couple of clubs facing do-or-die situations, Toronto Blizzard and Philadelphia Fury put on a curious, albeit entertaining, display Sunday night.

The two North American Soccer League clubs locked horns in the season finale knowing precisely what was required if they hoped to grab playoff berths in their respective conferences.

A win was not essential for Philadelphia, but the Fury needed to score at least three goals to edge past New England Tea Men for the final wild-card ticket to the American Conference quarter-finals. The Blizzard's task was somewhat more difficult, however — a victory and at least three goals in the process to overtake Rochester Lancers for the last National Conference berth.

Both managed to accomplish their objectives, with Toronto winning 4-3. Yet the way they went about it must have had many of the 22,511 fans at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium — second-largest crowd of the season — bewildered as the game progressed.

Philadelphia jumped to a quick 2-0 lead and appeared headed for their three-goal objective before the half. But Toronto then struck for four consecutive goals and the tide shifted in favor of the Blizzard, with the home club dominating the second half.

But Pat Fidelia managed to beat Toronto goalkeeper Blagoje Tamindzic with little more than two minutes left and both teams were playoff bound.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Kicks beat Memphis Rogues 5-2, Detroit Express edged Tampa Bay Rowdies 2-1, New York Cosmos outlasted Washington Diplomats 5-4 and Los Angeles downed Portland Timbers 3-1.

On Saturday, Vancouver Whitecaps edged Seattle Sounders 2-1, Chicago Sting blanked Atlanta 2-0, Houston Hurricane downed Dallas Tornado 3-1 and San Diego Sockers walloped San Jose Earthquakes 6-0.

The Blizzard, which won only one of its first eight games, finished the season with a 14-16 record and now will play host to New York on Thursday. The Fury, 10-20, will entertain Houston.

Vancouver Whitecaps, who finished first atop the Western Division in the National Conference for a second straight year, finished their campaign with a 20-10 record by defeating Seattle Sounders 2-1. The loss eliminated Seattle from playoff contention.

Buzz Parsons and Alan Balls scored for the 'Caps before a crowd of 24,196 in the Seattle Kingdome.

Vancouver plays Dallas in the first round of the playoffs.

Pro golf tests delayed by rain

Times News Services

Rains forced postponement of both the Ladies Professional Golf Association and men's PGA tournaments at the weekend.

The postponement of a $100,000 LPGA event at Jericho, N.Y., washed away Beth Daniel's three-stroke lead, dropping her back into a first-place tie with Donna Caponi Young and Judy Rankin.

The final 18 holes was rescheduled for today.

The third round of the Sammy Davis, Jr.-Greater Hartford Open also was hit by the elements and officials in Wethersfield, Conn., said they hoped to complete the final 36 holes today.

Fight manager dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fight manager Willie Ketchum, who handled seven world boxing champions in a career spanning nearly 50 years, has died of a heart attack at the age of 75.

Transmission troubles end Roy Smith's battle for lead

SEARS POINT, Calif. — Roy Smith of Victoria was in a tight three-car battle for the lead with six of 59 laps remaining Sunday when the transmission in his 1979 Pontiac Grand-Am gave out.

Smith, who had been battling eventual-winner Jim Insolo and runner-up Tim Williams in the NASCAR Winston Grand National event, wound up in the 13th position despite not finishing the race.

David Pearson placed third, Bill Schmidt was fourth and Bobby Allison was fifth.

Jim Smith takes three out of four

Jim Smith won three out of the four stock car races before a small crowd Saturday night at Western Speedway.

Smith, who holds the track record for stock cars at Western, won the 20-lap main event, the trophy dash and second heat before approximately 1,000 fans.

Speedway manager Tony Mortel blamed the low attendance on competition from the Victoria Shamrocks-New Westminster Salmonbellies Western Lacrosse Association playoff game and the Victoria Budgets-Portland Ray Bristowe senior "A" men's Super-Series softball game.

"We always have low attendance during playoff time," said Mortel.

A total of 10 stock car drivers showed up, despite the threat of a boycott by the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association.

Four winners shared the glory in the five-event jalopy segment of the program.

Rob Scott won the 25-lap feature and the trophy dash, Keith Lee took the first heat, Don Stewart topped the second heat and Bruce Aldridge claimed the third heat.

Stockers, Vicettes out in blaze of glory

Victoria entries fell short in their bids for British Columbia women's softball championships but came up winners in the respect department in Vancouver at the weekend.

Victoria Stockers finished second in the "A" tournament at South Memorial Park while VI 90 Vicettes, losing two marathon struggles Sunday, finished third in the "B" tournament.

Favored Vancouver Doc's Blues won their ninth B.C. championship by blanking Stockers 8-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Marlene Materi.

Blues dropped Stockers into the losers' bracket Saturday but the Victoria club bounced back to earn a second shot at the perennial champs.

In the "B" tournament, defending champion Nanaimo dropped Vicettes 2-1 in a 10-inning contest and VI 90 then had to turn around and face Vernon immmediately in a losers' bracket game.

Vernon tripped Vicettes 3-2 in 11 innings.

Vicettes blanked Princeton Hotel of Vancouver 8-0 in the opening round of the 11-team, double-loss elimination tourney on Saturday.

Mary Poskin won her fourth game, a six-hitter, and drove in the winning run with a two-run single as Prince George upset Nanaimo 7-2 in the final.

In playoff action in Victoria, Island Dryco Breakers defeated Capital City Pirates 2-1 Sunday at Hyacinth Park to capture the Victoria senior "C" title and advance to the provincial tournament Aug. 25-26 in Prince George.

Breakers, who topped Butler Brothers 11-7 and Bemister's Welding 3-1 on Saturday, were unbeaten while marching to the crown.

Pam Jones pitched all three Breaker victories, including one-hitters in the final and the win over Bemisters.

Barb Bissenden drove in Bea McKenzie for the tying run in the third inning during the final and then scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning after hitting a double.

Pirates advanced to the final with a 6-3 win over Bemister's and a 9-3 decision over Esquimalt Combos in losers' bracket games earlier Sunday.

In other Saturday games, Combos edged Pirates 7-6, Bemister's blanked Combos 11-0 and Pirates downed Butlers, 10-6.

Smart one-hit effort trips Firefighters 4-1

LIBBY, Mont. — Victoria Firefighters, the British Columbia champions, face an uphill climb in the Northwest regional senior Babe Ruth baseball championships.

The Firefighters dropped a 4-1 decision to Brett Modlen and the Oregon champions in their first start Sunday. Firefighters, who drew a first-round bye, now must meet either Idaho or Wyoming in a losers' bracket game today.

Modlen checked Firefighters on one hit. And it was losing pitcher Mike Bull who spoiled Modlen's bid for a no-hitter with a single in the third inning.

Bull was relieved by Rob Eckstrom in the sixth and the Victoria pitchers were touched for a total of eight hits.

Oregon clubbed Montana 20-7, Washington clipped Idaho 4-1 and the host Libby team trounced Wyoming 12-4 in Saturday's opening games.

Rallyists get 113 for gallon

Rod Burt, with George Cowell navigating, coaxed a Dodge Colt to perform for 113 miles on a gallon of gas Sunday to capture over-all honors in the Victoria Motor Sports Car Club's economy rally around Saanich Peninsula.

Runners-up were Bev Sinclair and Bob Rebitt, getting 109 miles in a Mazda.

Unofficially, however, the day's honors went to Alex Adamson and Leslie King, who made an exhibition appearance in a Volkswagen diesel and covered 188 miles on one gallon.

Crown clinched

SILVERSTONE, England (Reuter) — American Kenny Roberts clinched his second successive world 500 c.c. motorcycle championship by winning on Sunday the British Grand Prix, the second-last race in the series.

Cables build bigger lead

BURNABY (CP) — Gary Purdon scored three goals Sunday to lead Burnaby Cablevision to a 17-11 Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League triumph over Coquitlam Adanacs and a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Lyle Robinson, Lloyd Symons and Dave Dalmonte each had two goals for the winners. Five Adanacs each notched two tallies.

Can halt baldness Finnish scientists say

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists said they have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The claim, however, was greeted with initial reservation by some medical experts.

The product contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hairs and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

CONNORS AND LLOYD CAPTURE U.S. TENNIS TITLES

Still masters on clay

Times News Services

Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd have matured from their days as teen-age tennis stars, but they proved they're still masters on clay surfaces by capturing singles championships in the $275,000 United States Open clay court tournament at Indianapolis.

Connors, the No. 1 seed, captured his fourth clay court title Sunday, defeating Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 6-1, 2-6, 6-4.

On Saturday, Lloyd overcame old rival Evonne Goolagong 6-4, 6-3 for her fifth clay court championship.

John McEnroe teamed wiith Gene Mayer to capture the men's doubles 6-4, 7-6 over Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes and Tomaz Smid. Kathy Jordan and Anne Smith captured the women's doubles title 6-1, 6-0 over Penny Johnson and Paula Smith.

Connors earned $25,000 with the victory and moved to within 200 points of Grand Prix leader Bjorn Borg.

When Glenn Michibata drew hard-serving Butch Walts of the U.S. in the first round of the Canadian Open championships at Toronto, he joked that he'd need hockey shin pads to protect his legs from the booming shots.

Michibata, a 17-year-old from Mississauga, Ont., playing in his first major tournament, had his share of problems with Walts' big first service but felt it was the American's second service that did him in as Walts prevailed 5-7, 6-3, 6-1 in the only first-round men's singles match Sunday.

Borg, top-seeded in the men's competiton, sees his first action Tuesday against Bruce Manson of the U.S.

ALSO IN TENNIS: Bryan Gottfried scored a surprisingly easy 6-3, 6-0 over top-seeded Eddie Dibbs to win a $75,000 Grand Prix tournament at Dublin, Ohio . . . Gottfried's victory came on a slow clay surface whch had absorbed about three inches of rain during the last two days . . . And in Rolling Meadows, Ill., Ken Rosewall of Australia defeated Tom Okker of the Netherlands 6-3, 7-5 to win the "tennis legends" title . . . The legends is for players 35 years and older . . . Okker and Marty Riessen won the doubles final, beating Australians Fred Stolle and Owen Davidson 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Beal likes new role and Mussels roll on

EUGENE, Ore. — A pitcher who has turned into a utility performer because of his prowess with the bat was the big contributor Sunday as Victoria Mussels continued to carry a hot hand in the Northwest Baseball League.

Calvin Beal, loving his new role, helped account for six runs as Victoria thumped Eugene Emeralds 11-5.

The victory was Mussels' seventh in their last nine games.

Victoria's hot run was interupted for only the second time on an eight-game road trip when Eugene choked off a last-inning comeback bid and scored a 5-3 victory over the Mussels Saturday.

Beal went two-for-four at the plate, drove in two runs and scored four.

Doug Morganti also had two hits as John Caraher, with relief support from Roy Moretti, took credit for the victory.

Lumberworld reaches final

Lumberworld and league-champion Farmer Construction square off tonight in the opening game of the best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League playoff final at Lambrick Park.

Game time is 7:15.

The second game is scheduled for the same time and site Tuesday but league officials have yet to schedule the remainder of the series.

The league all-star squad leaves Victoria on Thursday for Lloydminster, Sask., where they will compete as British Columbia champions in the Western Canada championship tournament starting Friday.

Lumberworld earned a spot in the final by tripping Capital Radiators 5-4 in the deciding game of a best-of-three semi-final series Sunday at Lambrick.

Capitals had forced the series to the limit by tripping Lumberworld 7-4 earlier in the day.

Randy Price, hit his second three-run homer of the day in the sixth period of the final game to tie the game for Capitals.

But with two out and runners on second and third in the bottom of the frame, Capitals intentionally loaded the bases to bring league batting champion Russ Holmes to the plate.

They managed to get Holmes out but not before Tony Long, who had doubled, scored what proved to be the winning run on a passed ball.

Price sparked the Capital attack in the first game with his three-run blast in the third inning and Gary White collected three hits in three trips to the plate and scored four runs.

Lumberworld 003 000 1—4 6 3
Capitals 103 102 x—7 9 3

Classy charge produces win

B.C. Classy, recently sold by Doug Ferguson to Julius Vanthuyne for $25,000, charged down the homestretch Saturday to win the featured invitational ninth race at Sandown Raceway.

The B.C.-bred horse completed the mile in 2:03 1/5 and was helped to a third Sandown victory when Andys Peyton and Satin Satan both went off stride.

Andys Peyton, never out of the top three in any previous start this harness-racing season at Sandown, did get into contention in the stretch but tired and had to settle for a show finish behind Holridge Elaine.

Keith Linton gained a little more ground on Joe Hudon in the race for driving honors by winning once and placing twice in six drives while Hudon only had a single win in six starts.

The fifth race produced the meet's fourth dead heat and the third one for the place position when Khan Hit and Delta Duke followed Panicky Bell across the finish line.

Nora Wanstall topped Edna Richardson to win the "B" section.

Larry's answer chills Wayne and his friends

It doesn't pay to fool around with Mother Nature or, as New Westminster Salmonbellies discovered on Saturday, with Larry Smeltzer.

New Westminster veteran Wayne Goss took a verbal swipe at the Victoria Shamrock goalkeeper Thursday. Smeltzer's rebuttal, silent and considerably embarassing for Goss, was displayed Saturday at Memorial Arena when the Rocks thumped the Bellies 16-6 before 2,200 fans to grab a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association semi-final series.

Game No. 4 goes in New Westminster tonight and the fifth will be played here Wednesday.

Although several other rivals have come out this year to declare Smeltzer the best netminder in the WLA, Goss wasn't quite as flattering after the Salmonbellies beat Victoria 13-7 Thursday in New Westminster to square the series.

Smeltzer," said Goss, "is a flat-footed guesser."

Smeltzer, who shut out Westminster for 32 minutes and 16 seconds in one stretch in the series opener, said nothing. The scoreboard did his talking.

Smeltzer put together another flawless streak, 46 minutes and 33 seconds, that made winning an easy chore Saturday.

Larry stopped 42 shots, including all seven fired by Goss, and the Victoria netminder rubbed some salt into the wound by outscoring the talkative veteran two assists to one.

The Shamrocks, who trailed 4-3 when Smeltzer went into his shutout act, made things easy for themselves with spirited checking and a consistent and balanced offence.

Kevin Alexander led the way with three goals and five assists while Ivan Thompson and Jim Lynch both were 3-2 in the scoring column. Bob Cool also earned five points, including two goals. Junior recruit Tarey Pollcok (2), Chris Hall, Dave Thomson and Steve Steve Buckley completed Victoria's total.

Derek Dickson notched three tallies for the Bellies while clubmate Bob Tasker connected twice.

Each team was assessed 29 penalty minutes.

Coach Al Lewthwaite, starting to worry about New Westminster's lack of success at Memorial Arena, said he had no explanation for his team's performance.

"They checked the Shamrocks so well Thursday," said Lewthwaite, but I don't know why they can't do as well here. It has been one of our problems all season long."

In Coquitlam, goaltending also proved the difference and the Adanacs edged Vancouver Burrards 18-16 before 1,300 fans to grab a 2-1 lead in their series.

John Lewis and Greg Thomas combined to make 53 stops for the Adanacs, who led 9-2 after one period but saw that margin slip to 14-12 after 40 minutes when they hit penalty trouble.

Mark Valastin, Dan Wilson and junior Gordon Roberts each scored three goals for Coquitlam.

Dan Perreault scored four times and Mike McMillan added three markers for Burrards.

Fourth game in the Vancouver-Coquitlam series will be played Tuesday in Vancouver.

Enid Jackson takes senior tennis crown

VERNON — Enid Jackson and Sally Hemeon of Victoria did their best to stem the flow of titles to the United States at the Canadian senior tennis championships.

Jackson won the women's 40 (years) singles crown with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Lee Dobson and then combined with Hemeon for a 7-6, 7-6 doubles triumph over the Vancouver pair of Dobson and H. Brabanec.

American players dominated the weekend matches, winning six of the ten finals.

Tom Muench took the men's 35 singles with a 7-5, 6-4 straight set victory over fellow-Californian Chuck White.

White got his revenge in the doubles, however, teaming with Bob Hill of California to defeat Muench and Steve Bard of Portland 6-2, 6-4.

Henry Goley of Edmonton provided the other Canadian victories, defeating Alex Sobieski of Vancouver to win the men's 60 singles title and partnering Sobieski for a doubles triumph.

Athletics cruise into Island final

Victoria Athletics added the playoff title to their league crown by defeating Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal 13-10 in the second game of a best-of-three Vancouver Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League series Sunday at Pearkes Arena.

Athletics now advance to meet Nanaimo Midnight Auto in a best-of-three series for the Island title starting Saturday in the Hub City. The second game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Pearkes.

The winner of the Island series gains a berth in the provincial championship the following weekend in North Vancouver.

Esquimalt held a 6-5 lead after the first period of the hard-fought contest and the score was tied 9-9 after 40 minutes of play.

Bill Marechek, who finished up with two goals and three assists, broke a 10-10 deadlock by stealing a pass and scoring what proved to be the winning goal with around three minutes remaining.

Wayne Ferguson led the Athletic attack with three goals and three assists. Frank Alexander added three goals and Andy Reid was a leading playmaker with a goal and four assists.

Darrell Deane and Mark Bowles each scored twice for Esquimalt.

Vancouver girls win Canadian lacrosse crown

DARTMOUTH. N.S. (CP) — Muff Bowyer scored three goals to lead Vancouver Kirby's to a 6-4 decision over White Rock Titans in the championship game at the Canadian women's lacrosse tournament.

The B.C. teams were tied 4-4 going into the final period.

Vicky Brkich fired three goals trick for the Titans.

In earlier action, the Titans whipped Victoria Dolphins 5-1 and Kirby's topped Nova Scotia All-Stars 7-4.

Bottlers bag another title

Vancouver Island Goodwill Bottlers added the British Columbia Intermediate "A" Lacrosse League playoff title to league laurels Saturday by defeating Burnaby Cablevision No. 1 12-10 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The Victoria club won the best-of-five series in three straight games to boost a season-long unbeaten record to 19 contests.

Bottlers, coached by former Victoria Shamrock player Frank Alexander, won 11 and tied three games in 14 league appearances and beat Richmond Roadrunners 2-0 in the best-of-three semi-final series.

Burnaby still gains a berth in the combined "A" and "B" Canadian championships scheduled Aug. 22-26 at Pearkes Arena and Esquimalt Sports Centre because Bottlers already have a berth as the host club.

Approximately 16 teams from across Canada will attend the invitational event.

Bottlers jumped to a 6-3 lead in the first period but saw the margin slip to 9-8 at the end of 40 minutes.

John Crowther, Jim Lightbody, Paul Pynn and Gord Taylor each scored two goals to spark the Bottler attack.

Jesse Gurney led Burnaby marksmen with three goals and four assists.

Herb Isherwood and Derek Croucher combined goaltending talents to block 43 shots on the Bottler net while John Brunoro made 47 saves.

The Goodwill squad took 70 of the 137 minutes in penalties during the often-chippy encounter, in which a pair of fights in the third period produced game misconducts for two Island and two Burnaby players.

Burnaby bantams best

DELTA (CP) — British Columbia teams won all three division titles Saturday at the Canadian bantam lacrosse championships in this Vancouver suburb.

Burnaby got five goals from Pat Austin to defeat Peterborough, Ont., 26-3 in the A division final.

Mike Scardina scored three goals and added three assists to lead Richmond to a 10-7 win over Whitby, Ont., in the B division.

Kitimat won the C division with a 13-6 win over North Delta. Allan Perry scored six goals for the winners and Murray Oliviera was outstanding in goal.

Uplands ace

After more than half a century of playing the "humbling game," Barley Humber has finally connected for a hole-in-one.

The veteran member of Uplands Golf Club last week fired his first-ever ace, connecting on the 157-metre 11th hole of his home course.

Sixth victim

TORONTO (CP) — A 37-year-old Metropolitan Toronto man has become the sixth confirmed case of Legionnaire's disease.

A spokesman at York-Finch General Hospital said the man is in "fine and stable condition."

A 54-year-old male patient is recovering and two middle-aged patients are in fair condition in hospital.

A 43-year-old man in hospital since July 30 is also doing well.

And a 70-year-old woman admitted to hospital July 25 and suspected of having the disease is no longer on the critical list.

Foreign aid on hold: Clark

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark says he doubts there is enough public support for a significant increase in foreign aid.

Returning from a four-country African tour, Clark told reporters here Sunday it would be "difficult to get significant public support for a major increase now."

The prime minister was repeatedly pressed for increased aid by African leaders in his tour of Kenya, Tanzania, Zambia and Cameroon.

Clark said his private talks with leaders in Cameroon, Tanzania and Kenya, as well with Commonwealth heads of government at the Lusaka conference had not changed his outlook on Canada's foreign aid policy.

But the foreign aid question will be studied by a parliamentary committee, Clark noted.

"I was impressed by the effectiveness of some of the aid programs, particularly in Cameroon and Tanzania," he said. However, "I doubt if they would have taken me to the programs that didn't work."

The question is whether Canada should concentrate on helping the poorest people or supply major infrastructure projects such as roads and railways or do both, he said.

Newsmen covering the conclusion of Clark's second trip abroad since becoming Canada's youngest prime minister reported he displayed a statesman's ease and confidence he did not have when he flew to Africa more than two weeks ago.

He said he felt he had acquitted himself well during the Commonwealth conference in Lusaka, Zambia, and had dispelled doubts about his ability in the international arena.

His five-point peace program for Zimbabwe-Rhodesia made news at home but was never presented in one piece to the conference. However, the accuracy of that analysis was demonstrated as the leading players in the Lusaka meeting moved to a similar resolution on their own.

Clark's self-chosen role of mediator — played so well by former Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau at previous Commonwealth conferences — was usurped by the carefully orchestrated performance of Australia's Malcom Fraser, who sought to boost his sagging domestic pupularity.

"My role was to try to bring the different sides together," said Clark of his position. "I think we had some success in that role."

By the time Clark reached Nairobi, the man who blundered his way through Asia before the election was flying high enough to defy protocol and try his lungs on a tribal horn.

Stopping by the half-clad musician, Clark took the long animal horn, puffed once, twice, and finally forced out a hoot.

'No PetroCan flipflop'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Clark has indicated that his views on selling Petro-Canada remain unchanged despite signs of a policy shift by Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn.

"There has been no shift in policy towards Petro-Canada," Clark said Sunday.

Hnatyshyn said in an interview Friday the government won't decide whether to sell the multi-million dollar Crown corporation until it hears from a board of trustees being appointed to study it.

Clark said some of Petro-Can's activities could be better handled by the private sector while others could be done as effectively by other government agencies.

He was apparently referring to PetroCan's role as the nation's purchasing agent in oil deals with Mexico and Venezuela.

Both the NDP and the Liberals have threatened to bring down the minority Progressive Conservative government if the Crown corporation is dismantled.

However, Social Credit leader Fabien Roy — whose party may hold the balance of power in the next Parliament — says he does not intend to oppose plans sell PetroCan to the private sector.

Roy said in an interview a state-owned oil corporation could in time infringe on Quebec's right to develop its own hydro-electric resources.

Quebec Hydro accord

MONTREAL (CP) — About 900 support workers at the massive James Bay hydroelectric project have voted overwhelmingly to accept management's latest contract offer, ending a strike that began nearly three months ago.

Gerard Cote, spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America, said the workers would be returning to work within a few days.

The support workers, who perform clerical and inspection tasks at the project, voted by a margin of 73 per cent Sunday to accept the James Bay Energy Corp.'s "final offer" to end the walkout.

The new contract, based on cost-of-living adjustments, includes an 18.6-per-cent salary increase during the first year, nine per cent the second year, and six per cent the third year. Other details were unavailable.

The support workers walked off the job May 18 after working without a contract since February. They were flown out of the area when the dispute began, but construction workers belonging to different unions remained on the job.

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By Wardair

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

LETTERS FOR TODAY, GAME No. 4 ONLY

IMPORTANT!
IN ORDER TO BE ELIGIBLE, YOUR ENTRY MUST COMPLY WITH RULE NO. 2

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.

2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.

3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.

4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.

5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.

6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.

7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.

8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.

9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Now you can enjoy the Sebastiani family tradition.

Our Sebastiani family vineyards are the oldest in Northern California. The first grapes were planted here in 1825. Today, the third generation of Sebastianis continues our family's heritage of quality and dedication to old world wine-making skills.

My father August (like his father before him) won't have it any other way. Aware of the importance of care and time, he insists we make our wines in the unhurried, traditional way. Sebastiani wines are softened and mellowed in redwood casks, then aged to the peak of maturity in the cool, even temperatures of our limestone cellars. We know that the degree of maturity and the method by which it is reached makes the difference between good wine and great wine: over the years, many of our wines have won gold and silver medals in national and international competitions.

Sebastiani Mountain Burgundy and Sebastiani Mountain Chablis are two wines my father is especially proud of. He calls them the "Sebastiani family's contribution to fine dining, in the style of the French country wines." People seem to agree because they're our two most popular wines.

May we share the Sebastiani family tradition of premium quality and excellent value with you? Look for Sebastiani Mountain Chablis and Sebastiani Mountain Burgundy. We introduce them with pride and confidence, and we think you'll enjoy them.

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

Barry Crane, of Hollywood, is best known to the general public for his role in producing, directing and writing such popular television shows as "Mission Impossible" and "Mannix."

In the bridge world, however, Crane is a standout for a different reason. Of the 27,000 life masters of the American Contract Bridge League he ranks number one (with about 23,000 master points), a position he is likely to maintain for many years to come. His nearest rival has about 18,000 master points.

Crane was declarer in this deal played in the Vanderbilt team of four championship. West led a diamond to his partner's ace and East returned a diamond, ruffed by South.

It is not easy to see how Crane made four spades; in fact, some players might say his mission was impossible even if they saw all four hands. But Crane accomplished the feat quite easily when, at trick three, he made the somewhat unnatural play of the queen of spades.

This singular thrust rendered the defence helpless. It did not matter whether East or West took the queen; in either case the defenders would wind up scoring two trump tricks and a diamond, but no more.

Crane based his queen of spades play on the reasonable assumption that East had the doubleton ace or king of trumps, and Crane's queen lead was specifically directed towards that possibility.

In the actual case, East took the queen with the ace and returned a club. Crane went up with the ace, led another trump towards the J-7, and the battle was over. He later discarded two clubs on dummy's hearts and so brought home the contract.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, August 14
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be meticulous concerning personal possessions, insurance, basic protection, financial statements. Gemini, Sagittarius natives could play important roles. You are likely to strike pay dirt. Know it, plan ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is such that judgment, intuition hit the mark. Stress change, variety, gain through written word. Obtain hint from Aries message. Make new contacts, highlight ability to piece together clues, subtle nuances. You can get complete story!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money, hidden resources, special meetings command attention. Domestic or life style adjustment should be considered. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently. One close to you confides confidential information.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Define terms, avoid self-deception, accent friendship, utilize knowledge in ways that result in profit. You're on brink of major discovery! Know it and act accordingly. Aura of romance is present.

LEO (JULY 23-Aug. 22): Accent on career, prestige, reputation, ability to handle more responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer and Taurus figure in scenario. Older person is in your corner — and you'll know it. Your aid is sought in community project.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Reach for brass ring. You can progress beyond current expectations. Spotlight on education, spiritual development, travel and publishing. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. One who appered indifferent could now profess "profound interest."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New methods, fresh contacts, added independence indicated. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently—emphasis on productivity, financial backing. You solve mystery. You are given credit long overdue. Residuals, royalties surge to front of agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get "facts of life" concerning legal forms, rights and permissions. You learn in which direction you are to go — many questions are due to be answered, both from a personal and business view. Perceive circumstances in shrewd, patient manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Elements of timing, luck "take a liking" to you. Accent on spreading influence, increasing popularity. Social life accelerates. Keep diet, nutrition resolutions. Areas of service and employment show signs of improvement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Affair of heart dominates. Emotion takes precedent over logic. Accent on what you feel rather than what you think about a person. Protect self in clinches. Young person can be an ally. Respond accordingly.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 20-Feb. 18): Study Capricorn message — you're due for breakthrough to greater happiness. Know it, be optimistic, build on solid structure. Elevate self-esteem. Gemini, Sagittarius, Virgo natives figure prominently.

PICES (Feb. 19-March 20): Attention centers on home, relatives, special trips and messages. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio individuals could play significant roles. Avoid scattering forces — come to terms with family member over expenditure connected with remodeling or luxury item.

IF AUGUST 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are perceptive, active, analytical, stubborn, creative and attractive to the opposite sex. You could travel in September; you make important domestic adjustment in December. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play significant roles in your life. You have sense of drama, can express yourself in graphic manner. You report, write, illustrate beliefs in a manner which interests and fascinates people. You are "recovering" from recent emotional-financial disappointments. Take a chance on your own abilities. It could be smooth sailing ahead!

U.S. productivity prod urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional economists, although predicting that inflation in the United States likely will slow to 6.2 per cent a year in the 1980s, hold out the prospect that it might seriously worsen and that unemployment might skyrocket unless U.S. factories and workers boost their productivity.

In its unanimous mid-year report issued Sunday, the joint economic committee of Congress said lagging productivity is the U.S. economy's central problem.

And the key to reviving the economy, the committee said, lies in boosting productivity through tax incentives for savings and investment and better training of disadvantaged workers.

In the middle-of-the-road case, the economists' report assumed Congress will grant savings-and-investments incentives necessary to increase productivity significantly, that energy supplies will continue without interruption as dependence on foreign oil lessens, that personal income taxes will be cut periodically to offset inflation and that social security taxes will continue rising on schedule.

Those assumptions would result in an inflation of consumer prices — now rising by more than 13 per cent annually — of 6.2 per cent a year through the 1980s.

The economy would grow by 3.5 per cent a year and today's unemployment rate of 5.7 per cent would decline steadily after the current recession to 6.7 per cent in 1980-84 and average 5.7 per cent in the last half of the decade.

Using the bleakest set of projections, however, the economists forecast the U.S. standard of living would deteriorate. This would mean inflation of 9.2 per cent a year through the 1980s and a sharp drop in business investment that would result in even fewer jobs.

Under those projections, today's average home price of $55,700 would be bloated to $151,200 by 1988, a U.S. gallon of gasoline — five-sixths of a Canadian gallon — would cost $5.80, and a loaf of bread $2.06.

Mayor Rizzo charged in police brutality

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department today charged the city of Philadelphia and Mayor Frank Rizzo with systematically condoning police brutality ranging from shootings to beatings.

In an unprecedented move to halt civil rights abuses by law enforcement officers, the government filed suit alleging that entrenched city policies "directly contribute" to such brutality in Philadelphia.

The suit was filed in U.S. district court in Philadelphia, plagued in recent years with an estimated 1,200 brutality complaints a year, 75 involving police shootings. Victims of the shootings, the suit says, are overwhelmingly black or Hispanic.

It names as defendants the city, Rizzo — once a detective and later the city's police commissioner — current Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill and 18 other top city officials.

The suit cites evidence that O'Neill viewed a videotape of a police officer beating a passive, handcuffed prisoner, yet took no action.

Earthquake rattles Chattanooga area

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A small, pre-dawn earthquake centred in Tennessee rattled windows, but apparently caused no damage in portions of three Southeastern states, the U.S. Geological Survey reported today.

The tremor registered 3.7 on the Richter scale and was felt widely in southeast Tennessee, southwest North Carolina and north Georgia, including Atlanta, the centre said.

The quake, reported to have lasted from three to five seconds, was centred about 80 kilometres northeast of Chattanooga.

Fasting Chavez calls major strike

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers union President Cesar Chavez on Sunday called for an expanded strike against California vegetable growers, amid grower claims an eight-month strike against 11 lettuce firms has been a flop.

Chavez said the 13-year old union faces its "greatest test" but stopped short of declaring a general strike against the 20 California vegetable growers where the union has strike authorization.

"I know when the expanded strike will be," said Chavez, "and I know how big it will be." But he refused to elaborate.

Speaking at a rally Saturday with Gov. Edmund Brown at his side, Chavez said he would ask the union convention in Salinas for "total mobilization for the extension of the strike . . ."

Chavez, 52, who has been on a water-only fast, said he felt "pretty weak." Asked when he would end his fast, begun one week ago for "love and patience" in the strike, he said, "We'll let the spirit tell us."

An expanded strike might affect up to 16,000 farm workers in the Salinas Valley alone.

Union members are now paid $3.70 an hour. The union has sought wage increases to $5.25 an hour by the third year of the contract.

Roll out the barrel and bikes

Blanshard killing civic core: mayor

The speed and volume of traffic on the Blanshard Street extension is helping to kill Saanich's hopes of having "comprehensive" commercial-residential growth in the municipality's so-called civic core, Mayor Mel Couvelier said today.

He said because of the traffic the companies involved feel that any major retail development would be unsuccessful in the civic core — a half-mile long banana-shaped area between Vernon and Seymour.

He said municipal staff earlier had produced a report favoring piecemeal development because of the fractured ownership of the 50 parcels of land.

About 18 parcels still remain in separate ownership.

"We politicians said no, let's try to have comprehensive development," Couvelier said today.

With that view in mind, Couvelier said council had approached Campeau Corporation of Quebec and asked it to consider extending the Town and Country Shopping Centre into the core.

He said Campeau took options on 12 parcels of land but "all of a sudden backed out." The company had considered connecting the old shopping centre to the new development by overhead and underground passes at its own expense.

In addition to the traffic problem, Couvelier said he understood Campeau's main tenant, Safeway, had refused to cross the street.

He said if the Campeau project had gone ahead it would have been a major factor in co-ordinating development in the civic core.

Admitting that piecemeal development is the only answer is a major disappointment, Couvelier said.

The council is now reconsidering a proposal, rejected earlier, for a professional building to house 40 doctors and dentists on the south side of Vernon Avenue.

A 4-4 vote earlier defeated the proposal by Conrad Credits Ltd. because aldermen felt the project might prejudice comprehensive commercial development. The Advisory Planning Commission expressed similar concerns.

At a recent public hearing, however, the majority of council favored the project. The application has been tabled pending a review of parking requirements.

If piecemeal development is allowed, Couvelier said councils now and in the future must look closely at every application.

Museum gets grant

The Provincial Museum has received $30,000 from the federal government under a program to get museums outside their own walls.

A total of 34 museums in Quebec, Manitoba and B.C. received grants of nearly $1 million.

The B.C. museum gets the money for a touring museum for toddlers, which will go to more than 40 rural communities in Western Canada.

Top cop spots pot

An Ontario man was fined $100 in provincial court this morning because Central Saanich Police Chief Bob Miles spotted a marijuana plant while buying tomatoes at a roadside stand on June 17.

Miles, stopping to buy tomatoes at 6506 Oldfield, glanced toward the house and spotted the marijuana in full leaf.

Armed with a warrant the next day, police raided the property and found 31 plants.

Thomas David Todd Butler was charged with possession.

Lawyer Christopher Maddock pleaded guilty on Butler's behalf.

Because of the marijuana incident, Butler was evicted from the Oldfield Road address and moved back to Ontario.

Court ruling quashes garbage pickup bylaw

The city of Victoria's new garbage collection bylaw, which gives free collection to owners but not to apartment tenants, has been quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court.

The 12-page judgment by Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie has been filed at the Vancouver courthouse, but copies for Victoria had not arrived this morning.

Victoria lawyer James Carfra, representing Elsie Wedman, the owner of a small apartment building, argued Aug. 2 in court that the bylaw is discriminatory.

The bylaw, approved June 14, states the occupier of each parcel of land shall be entitled to free removal of two garbage cans by the city 50 times a year at intervals not exceeding 12 days.

But the definition of occupier is given, in the case of a parcel of land occupied by one person or by a family, as that person or the head of the family, and in the case of land separately owned by two or more persons, firms or corporations, the owner of that parcel of land.

Parcel of land is defined as meaning any unit of real property held under a separate title, including strata lots in condominiums.

What this means, Carfra told Mr. Justice McKenzie, is that on a hypothetical city street, two cans of garbage will be picked up free from a single-family house, 40 cans (or the equivalent pooled into a bulk container) from a 20-suite condominium — but only two cans from a 20-suite apartment.

The apartment owner was responsible for paying for private pickups even though, through municipal taxes, he helped pay for city garbage collection.

Because more than half the units of accommodation in the city are apartment suites, this meant council deprived more than half its residents of free garbage collection.

The reasons for Mr. Justice McKenzie's quashing of the bylaw are expected to reach Victoria in a day or two.

Police-fire split not seen as vote issue in Esquimalt

Splitting Esquimalt police and firefighting forces into separate departments is unlikely to be an election issue this November, special committee chairman Ald. James McEvay said today.

McEvay heads a four-man study group appointed by Mayor Art Young to determine the best way to provide two distinct public safety services satisfactory to provincial police and fire commissions.

McEvay said he didn't think his committee's report — which will blueprint methods and costs of fulfilling separate police and fire coverage — can be an election issue, even if the document is delivered before the elections for mayor and aldermen.

Esquimalt has one of the last dual-capacity forces of its kind and was the subject of an efficiency study commissioned by the attorney-general through the B.C. Police Commission. The report convinced mayor and aldermen that improvement in public safety was needed.

"There is no question we have to do something different from what we are doing now. I don't think there is any alternative for any council. We can't stay with the status quo," McEvay said.

"We want to present all possible alternatives and costs and come up with something to provide the people of the municipality with good protection at the lowest cost."

Some suggestions made by Young when the council committee was appointed included two separate departments, one each for fire and police protection; a single-purpose police department and fire protection by agreement through an adjoining municipality; the use of volunteer and full time firemen; contracting-out fire protection.

"Costs are going sky high in protective services," McEvay noted, "and we want to give the people of the municipality the most coverage we can without taxes going sky high."

The committee has asked for surveys and information from the provincial fire commission, police chief Arthur Burton and the Esquimalt police union and McEvay indicated members will apply themselves to the subject when all the facts are before them, probably by October.

Bike stolen, man dies

A 65-year-old Colwood man who collapsed early Sunday morning while telling police how he had found what he believed was his stolen bicycle died less than two hours later.

Thomas W. Graves heard a noise outside his apartment at 2847 Sooke Lake Road at about 2:30 a.m. When he looked outside and noticed that his bicycle was missing, he decided to go looking for it. A short time later, he spotted a bike he thought was his and he soon located a police cruiser.

As he was telling Const. Dave Copeland of Colwood RCMP what had happened, Graves suddenly collapsed, apparently of a heart attack. Copeland and Auxiliary Const. Marcel Krywy immediately began cardio-pulmonary resuscitation until the ambulance arrived.

Graves was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital at 4:22 a.m.

Police today said that a man is "assisting us in the investigation," but they would not identify him. No charge has been laid.

Safeway hold-up suspect remanded

Ernest Joseph Leblanc, 29, of 3267A Galloway was charged in provincial court today with two counts of armed robbery.

He was released on his own recognizance and $2,000 bail with one or two sureties on the undertaking he carry no offensive weapons.

He was remanded until next Monday for election of trial method.

He is charged with robbing Safeway stores at University Heights shopping centre Aug. 7 and Town and Country shopping centre Aug. 10.

A sentimental journey to Camp Five

WE WENT ON A SENTImental journey last weekend. The occasion was the Camp Five Reunion, a rallying of former dwellers at that remote inland logging station.

MacMillan Bloedel's Camp Five itself no longer exists. The crowding second growth of a new forest has taken over the lakeside site of what was once a complete and busy village in the wilderness.

But for the two days — or rather the evening and afternoon — of the reunion, Camp Five lived again, in the remember-whens of the 400 men and women who converged on Campbell River to take part.

There was a buffet supper in the Ironwood Mall. It was a meal fit for a logger, with mountains of potato salad and mounds of cold cuts.

Afterward, they showed slides of camp scenes and personalities. Outdated logging locomotives rolled along grades from which the steel has long been taken up. Men now well on in years saw themselves as young and hardy chokermen or rigging slingers or hooktenders.

Afterward, there was dancing. Good, loud solid music for a Tame Ape to get his teeth into, and heavy on the polkas.

Camp Five had its beginnings as early as 1941, when the company sledded the first buildings into place by Brewster Lake. It opened in 1943, complete with cookhouse and bunkhouses, office and commissary, sawfiler's shack and married quarters. It remained a major base of operations until 1964.

It was the home of their childhood to many of the young people who came to the reunion. They remembered swimming and skating, parties and community doings. All part of the busy life of a settlement shut off from the outside world and dependent on its own resources.

A sigh from an elderly camp push. "But it changed after we got the road," he recalls. "Things were different, then."

Camp Five witnessed and took part in the great transition that revolutionized logging on the B.C. coast.

Trucks replaced locomotives and skeleton cars as log conveyors. Gravelled roads took the place of steel rails. And with a road to the outside, the old isolation ended. A logger and his family could come and go in their time off. They could visit friends in town; they were less dependent on their camp neighbors for companionship.

There were other changes. It was in Camp Five that the push, Eagle-Eye Lund, said to a young bull bucker in charge of the falling, "What do you know about chain saws?"

"Nothing," the bull bucker told him.

"Well, you'd better learn," said Eagle-Eye, "because we've got a bunch of them coming in."

The saws were forerunners of the light, compact, one-man tool that mows today's woods. "Hitler Specials" the men called them, a name inspired by their German origin. They were two-man machines, heavy, cumbersome and pernickety. But their introduction marked the beginning of the end for the old axe-and-crosscut falling sets.

Also, it was at Camp Five that the hard hat, which every logger now wears on the job as a matter of course, made its appearance.

"The boys hated them" one old-timer racalls. "They swore they'd quit before they wore 'em. But they came around."

The Camp Five Reunion continued next day with a picnic on the lawn of MacMillan Bloedel's Menzies Bay division headquarters within viewing distance of tide-torn Seymour Narrows. There was pop and there were hot dogs, but no organized program. People simply did what pleased them: sat around in the sunshine and shared their memories.

A company crummy, one of the buses that take crews to work, ran a shuttle service up the logging road to the Camp Five site. Win and I went in for a look-see.

Except for vestigial clearings and a couple of old concrete foundations, there was nothing to indicate that a large and bustling logging camp had once sprawled over the site.

Camp Five mushroomed out of the stumps and slash of the old woods. And, its purpose served, to the new woods it has returned.

Waterfront strollers get an aerial bonus

Ask the Times

Q. Could you please tell us whether the expression is "splitting image" or "spitting image?" We would also like to know the origin of the expression. C.A.

A. It is spitting image and comes from the old English expression spit and image. The word spit, around 1890, meant "a speaking likeness."

Waterfront strollers got a bonus late Sunday afternoon when Canada's new Aurora maritime patrol aircraft flew a couple of low passes past Beacon Hill Park en route to CFB Comox.

The plane came over from the Abbotsford air show where it made its Canadian debut.

Although still the property of Douglas Aircraft, it bore a maple leaf and Canadian forces colors.

The four-engine plane, with stinger tail like the Argus it will replace, left Comox early today for the Arctic where it will make polar crossings to test its electronic navigation equipment.

Although bearing strong resemblance to the 20-year-old Argus, Aurora has a wingspan about 50 feet shorter and closes a two-generation gap with its sophisticated electronics.

It will visit Thule and Alaska during the week, returning via Comox Friday for further flight testing at the factory in Burbank, Calif.

Marital tiff not all bad

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Army chaplain says "creative fighting" between husbands and wives can help strengthen marriages.

Chaplain John Bakle propounded his theory on the basis of what he said is 18 years of experience in counselling married couples.

Capt. Bakle outlined his ideas in the 3rd Infantry Division's newpaper, Frontline, in West Germany. Army officials were so impressed with the tips that they distributed extracts to other army publications.

The chaplain wrote that friction often develops between a husband and wife as they discover differences in each other and then try "to change and mutually grow from these discoveries.

"This friction and the attempt to grow from it can be called 'creative fighting,' " said Bakle.

"In many successful marriages, I have discovered several principles that I believe every married couple should keep in mind, if their 'fighting' is to be creative and not destructive," Bakle said.

He outlined these ground rules:

— Express opinions, desires and concerns as calmly as possible. Listen as well as talk. (He warned that "often, the truth becomes lost in the heat of emotion.")

— Try to appreciate your mate's point of view, "even if it doesn't make sense at the moment."

— Differences should not be discussed during meals or at bedtime.

— Don't zero in on your mate's vulnerable areas to gain the upper hand.

— Don't rake up old scores or arguments.

— Don't call each other names.

— Don't use the silent treatment because it ends effective communication and the possibility of compromise.

— Give up wild accusations, verbal abuse, shouting the other down and threats.

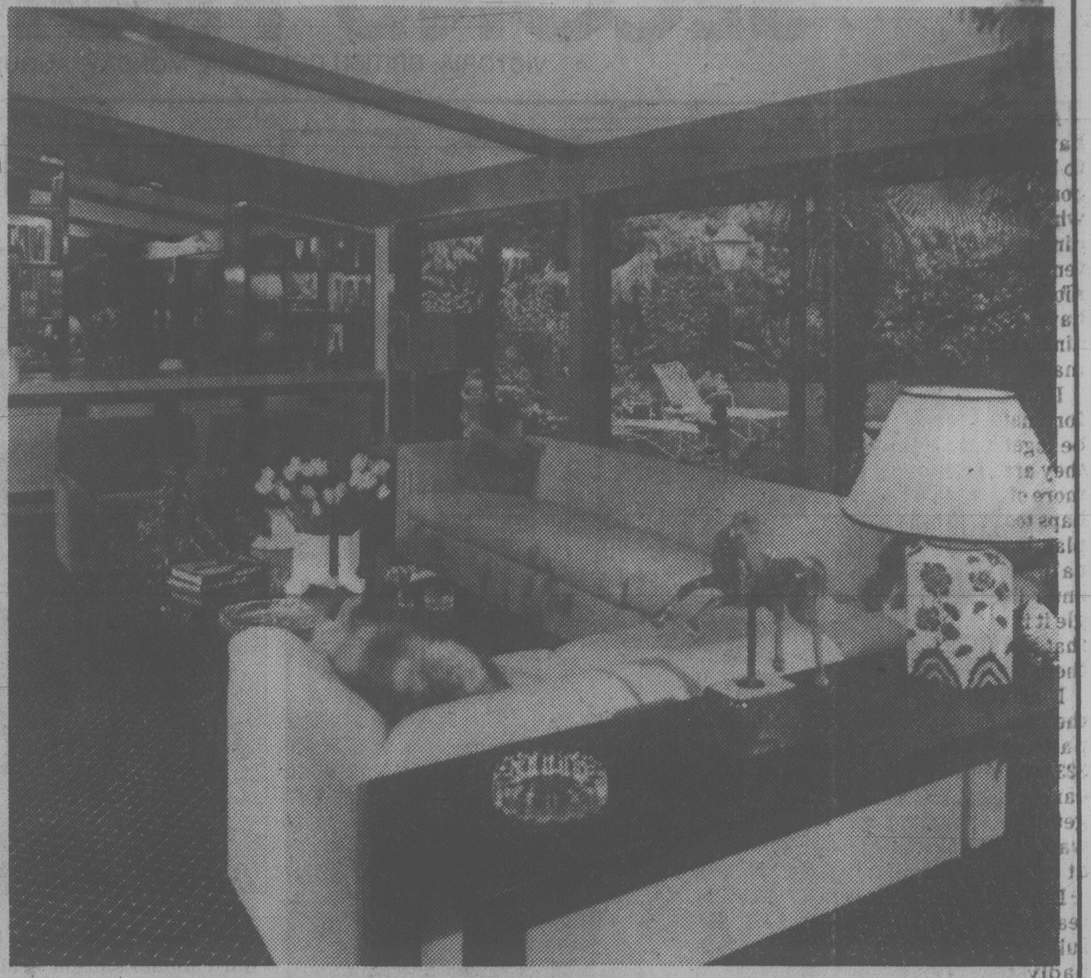
— Don't play psychiatrist by analysing the other.

— Don't drag in children and relatives as allies or go-betweens.

— Physical violence can never be condoned.

The chaplain cautioned against using tears "as a form of psychic warfare," which he suggested might boomerang.

And, finally, Bakle advised all marital combatants to "learn when to call a truce" in a quarrel.



Glass exterior wall makes outdoors seem part of the room

Furniture defines rooms

By Pauline Graves

Architecture in the last several years has brought us the open look, that is, room areas rather than separate rooms for each function, and just in time, too. With inflation and with high building costs, affordable houses would consist of a cluster of small, cramped rooms.

When several rooms share the same ceiling, without separating walls, they all seem more spacious than their true sizes. But a separation can be achieved, nonetheless, as exemplified in the room shown here, by designer Bill Hulse.

Furniture defines the living room in this attractive house. Open to the dining area on one side, and to the game area on another, the living room space has its own identity. Actually, it is an oversize conversation grouping.

The two long sofas outline two sides, and two comfortable upholstered chairs, side by side, close in the third. They are all gathered around the handsome, glass topped coffee table, convenient to every seating piece. Because the sofas and chairs are all heavy, the light look of the table offers a contrast, and reduces the bulk of the over-all grouping.

The blank back of an upholstered sofa presents an unwelcoming, almost forbidding look to those who face it. However, a walnut stained Parsons table handles that problem by going the length of the sofa's back. It augments the separation of the group from the rest of the room and softens the total appearance by displaying a lamp and decoratives.

'I'll be glad to fix squeak if you'll kindly not squawk'

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a divorcee and want to marry her. She says she loves me, too, but doesn't want to get married again because, if she does, her ex will not have to pay her any more alimony. She frankly admits that it's not the money — she just wants to punish him by making him pay as long as she lives.

I am not rich, but I could support her well enough so that she wouldn't have to go to work.

How can I get her to change her mind?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: You probably can't. And you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from BLEARY-EYED AND ENVIOUS brought back memories. (BLEARY-EYED couldn't sleep because the newlyweds in the apartment directly above her had a squeaky bed. You advised her to come right out and tell the woman.)

When I was a bachelor, I had the same problem. Only the couple whose bedroom was directly above mine were middle-age people who alternated between keeping me awake with their noisy arguments and their squeaky bed.

I decided to tackle the problems one at a time. After a week of the squeaky-bed disturbance, I saw the man in the elevator, so I whispered discreetly, "I haven't had a good night's sleep in a week, pal. Your squeaky bed has been keeping me awake every night!"

He replied, "Thanks. I'll take care of it."

DEAR ABBY: An elderly man had a heart attack aboard the same plane I was on just as it was taxiing for takeoff. An ambulance with paramedics arrived within seconds of our return to the terminal.

I realized then that it had been two years since I had taken the cardiac pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course. Frankly, I couldn't remember all the procedures. I had planned to refresh my memory (it's in my manual) but I never got around to it.

Yesterday, a neighbor's father had a heart attack. Another man and I did what we could, but the victim died. Actually, we did little or nothing to increase his chances of survival. In the panic, I couldn't remember what I was supposed to do, and the other man knew even less than I did. In short, neither one of us knew what the h--- we were doing!

As a result, I have placed my CPR instructions with our utility bills, and every month when my wife and I pay our bills we review it. If an emergency arises we will not feel so helpless.

CPR is simple. Everyone should be familiar with it, and the procedure should be reviewed periodically. Sometimes just taking the course is not enough.

LAZY AND ASHAMED

DEAR LAZY: Thanks for an important reminder.

Readers, if a relative, friend or stranger needed emergency first aid, would you know what to do? Or to put it another way, if you were suddenly stricken, wouldn't you hope that someone present would know how to administer CPR?

I urge you to call your local heart association or the Red Cross and find out when and where classes in these lifesaving procedures are available.

Don't drift into your sixties

Leslie Holbrook
the fourth quarter

An occupation must have a purpose if you are to be satisfied with it on a continuing basis. That is why pre-retirement planning is important for contentment during your senior years — whether you have been the breadwinning spouse or the homemaker of the family.

If wife and husband are fortunate enough to still be together in retirement they are likely to see a lot more of each other — perhaps too much unless they plan both joint and separate interests. If you enter the sixties as a single it is equally important that you do not drift into them aimlessly.

I am impressed with the decisions of two well-paid men ($35,000 and $23,000) to leave their jobs early (in their fifties) to get into something they want to do and can work at as long as they like.

David Burns quit his teaching job to become a full-time handyman (how badly they are needed today) after teaching himself to be a jack-of-all-trades.

Milton Bridge took early retirement as a school principal to work in a family business. Bridge wanted to escape the pressures of top management for a less-demanding job that he could continue into later years.

Both voted for less money but better control of what they would do as the years roll along. They are, as the Kitchener-Waterloo Record put it, "examples that so-called status careers are not necessarily the end-all in personal fulfilment."

If you are well on your way to retirement, now is the time to think about a continuing occupation — something you really want to do. Opportunities abound for acquiring knowledge and developing skills for future use — at technical schools and colleges, helping someone already in the business or just teaching yourself with the help of your library and similar facilities.

I hope you don't run into roadblocks such as cited by an injured printer who wants to retrain, at 54, as an accountant. He says the compensation board will not support this venture because he is in his 50s. If this is the only reason it is shortsighted.

Future work need not be tied to a pay packet. Some of the most satisfying post-retirement activities can be with a volunteer agency. As a matter of fact, Dr. Bob McClure insists that, in retirement, one should not be involved in earning a salary but should work at helping others.

"The job of a senior," he tells me, "should be to do voluntary service that all too often is not being done at all. In the United Kingdom, particularly, one sees examples of wonderful work done by the voluntary efforts of seniors and I know there are similar opportunities in Canada."

So whether or not it means extra money, make your choice in your fifties and work toward it — perhaps finding time for a little practice before 65, by easing up on less important things.

For as Pierre Trudeau said at 59, "one thing in growing older is that we acquire the ability to eliminate the unimportant."

'Phantom pain' persists although leg's gone

YOUR HEALTH
by L. L. Coleman, MD

Five years ago, my father had his leg removed. He is able to walk with an appliance and is remarkably well-adjusted, except for one thing. He says that at night he still has a terrible feeling of pain in the toes that are no longer there. No one seems able to explain this peculiar thing. Will it go on for the rest of his life? — Mrs. G.V.

DEAR MRS. V.:

The condition you describe is not unusual in cases of amputation. The catastrophe of the loss of a leg is complicated by this condition, which is known as "phantom pain."

The explanation for this problem is that there may be some irritation of the nerve that was cut in the stump of the leg. Usually, the problem disappears in a few months. When it lasts for a long period of time, there are some neurosurgical techniques that are used. Injections into the spinal cord area have been effective in many instances. With such treatment, the intensity and the duration of the phantom pain can be markedly reduced.

Patients who are unfortunate enough to have this additional problem describe the pain as being of the same intensity as if the rest of the limb were still there. The psychological overtones are great. The emotional distress it causes sometimes demands the greatest amount of sympathy and understanding from both doctor and family.

It is always a testimonial to the courage of these patients to find how well they compensate for this disastrous experience and continue to function as well as they do.

Each year when I go to the dentist, a full set of X-rays of my mouth is taken. I've heard that this can cause cancer of the skin to turn up many years after. Is this true? — Miss E.E.L.

DEAR MISS L.:

As far as I know, cancer of the skin has never been reported as a result of X-ray study of the teeth. Many people, like yourself, are concerned about the radiation hazards associated with teeth X-rays. Incidentally, many people are similarly concerned about repeated X-rays of the chest.

Modern techniques use such minimal time exposure for these X-rays that all dangers are eliminated. Physicians who speciaize in X-ray diagnosis employ may protective devices in order to insure that overexposure does not occur.

You must have faith that your dentist, by his long training, is completely aware of any speculative harm that might be the end result of yearly X-rays of the teeth. Many dentists, in fact, have reduced the frequency with which these studies are made and employ them only when they are absolutely essential for diagnosis and treatment.

28.8-year increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman's life expectancy at birth has increased 28.8 years since 1900 while a man's has risen 23 years, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The council says a U.S. female born today can expect to live 77.1 years on the average, compared with 48.3 years in 1900. The longevity of a male child born today is 69.3 years, compared with 46.3 years at the turn of the century.

1 BIRTHS

SWETNAM — Al and Nancy (nee Reeson) welcome with much love and pride the arrival of their first child, a son, Nicholas Ryan, 8 lbs., 9½ oz., born July 24, 1979. Delighted grandparents are Gordon Reeson of Phoenix, Arizonia, Janet and Sam Swetnam and Betty Reeson of Victoria. Ninth great-grandchild for Mrs. Elizabeth Reeson. Sincerest thanks to Drs. Mark Fisher, Prevost, Jagdis and the fantastic surgery and maternity nursing staff at Victoria General Hospital.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

THE MANAGEMENT, STAFF and residents wish to extend their sincere appreciation to the Naden Band for their performance at our Garden Party, July 25. Also to Mr. Flack and the many relatives of our residents who assisted us, and the Victoria Kinsmen Club for their generous donation of easels for our activity programme. The many letters and personal thank you's that we have received are indicative of its success. Thank You! Mrs. E Galbraith, Manager, Oak Bay Manor.

39 PERSONALS

CITY WATCHDOG RICHARDS Report #121. Best Wishes go to Ken MacDonald who was The Queen's Printer for the past 9 years, for many happy and healthy years of retirement. Mr. MacDonald was the only Queen's Printer to serve 3 different Provincial Governments and 3 different Premiers. Your City's Watch Dog has lived on Dalton Street for nearly 50 years and it appears that an influential person residing on Clarence Street in James Bay was fortunate to convince the city to pave a street leading to his residence, before Victoria West Taxpayers are able to convince City Council to build sidewalks and to pave Dalton Street, which has never had proper sidewalks or a good paved street, after the Dalton Street residents indicated they are willing to pay their share of the costs for some time now. For further information regarding City matters please phone 383-6259. Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards. Seen-in-Passing, Joe Harley Craig talking about past radio personalities at CKDA. Postscript: The Victoria Post #1 Native Sons of British Columbia 93rd Anniversary of the last Spike trip to Nanaimo and return which will include a buffet lunch and cost $13, can accommodate 10 more people. Please phone 383-6259 before Sunday 6pm to make reservations. Post Postscript: The answer to Your City's Watchdog Richards question #2 is Douglas Street which appeared in Saturday mornings Colonist and Saturday evenings Times. These questions will be continued in the Saturday editions of these papers in the future. Post Post Postscript: It is Your City's Watchdog opinion that if street vendors on the causeway keep using Coca Cola and Pepsi painted advertising umbrella's they should be banned from the Parliament Buildings area, and futhermore it was a disgrace to view the area on August 6th (British Columbia Day) with the vendors clogging up the sidewalk on Government Street opposite The Empress Hotel crosswalk.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our deep thanks and appreciation to all our kind friends and neighbours who came to our support in the recent loss of our very loving and much loved Kate (Kit) Elizabeth Brown. Our grateful thanks also, to the nurses and staff at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and last, but not least, to Dr. A. V. Piper, whose kind and conscientious attention so greatly eased her last hours. — George Brown and all his loving family.

The family and relations of the late Leslie Simmons wish to express their thanks to all who attended his funeral and sent cards, also donations to the Heart and Cancer Funds. Your sympathy is deeply appreciated, as we learn to live with our loss. Special thanks to Dr. J.P. White for his kind attention.

309 IN MEMORIAM

BARNES J.W. - In loving memory of my beloved husband Jack, (Friday, August 13, 1976).

"The Fishermans Prayer"
"God grand that I may live and fish until my dying day.
And when it comes to my last cast,
I then most humbly pray,
Within the Lord's safe landing net,
And peacefully asleep.
That in His mercy, I may be judged
As "good enough" to keep."

If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give, yes and more,
To see the face we loved so well
Come smiling through the door.
Sadly missed and in our memory always his loving wife Jean and family.

BARNES — In loving memory of a wonderful brother, Jack Barnes, August 12, 1976.

To hear his voice, to see him smile, to sit and talk with him awhile, to be together in the same old way, would be our greatest wish today.

Frank Barnes and Family

PETFORD-In loving memory my dear son Victor, who passed away Aug. 11, 1974, and all my loved ones.
This month comes back with deep regret,
It brings back a day I will never forget,
You fell asleep without a good-bye,
But memories of you will never die.
There is a corner in my heart especially kept for you,
As long as life and memory last, I will remember you.
Always loved and remembered Mum.

Heavy are our hearts today, Memory brings you back once more,
To the time when you were with us,
To the happy days of yore.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Dahlia day's on Saturday for Salt Spring exhibitors

GARDENING

Hilda Beastall

It seems early to be writing about a dahlia show but with the advanced season anything is possible. This year Salt Spring Island Garden Club chose Saturday, August 18 for its summer showing of gladioli and dahlias.

In 1954, the gardeners of Salt Spring Island, long known for their fine gardens, decided to form a club to extend their usefulness by shows and meetings spreading information of their hobby to newcomers.

This is their 25th anniversary, and the Gladiolus and Dahlia Show on Saturday of this week will be a part of their celebration events. The other occasion will be the Salt Spring Island Fall Fair on September 15 with the club being in charge of the horticultural section. More on this show later, but mark it on the calendar as an early fall treat, with a picnic on the Island to make it a memorable day.

Newcomers to Greater Victoria who like to combine trips to nearby points with their garden interests, will get much pleasure by visiting Salt Spring Island this Saturday to see the island in late-summer dress.

While it is unlikely the gardens there have been luckier than ours as regards summer rain, the temperatures have probably been more moderate than here owing to proximity to bodies of water.

I have seen some fine glads here this year. These are splendid flowers when well displayed at flower shows. In the same hall as dahlias on display, the contrast in form is appreciated for the color range is practically the same.

As always at shows, the gardener sees colors and forms that seem prefect for one's own garden. These are the ones to note, and also to discover where those chosen may be ordered for next year's planting.

Salt Spring Island is not many minutes by ferry from Sidney terminal, yet its character is different enough to be thoroughly enjoyable. Go prepared for an exploration walk from the United Church Hall in Ganges where the show will be open on Saturday from 2 until 5 p.m.

Plan the ferry crossing according to boat schedule times to allow full enjoyment of the show and the added pleasure of a leisurely walk in the quiet of a rural island.

From the last visit we made to Salt Spring three points remain clear — the enthusiasm in the show hall, the friendliness of everyone we met and the unbelievable quietness in the air.

These experiences may be yours if you plan now to see the Gladiolus and Dahlia Show Saturday August 18 at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

Jam-up breaking

ALTON, Ill. (UPI) — A traffic jam involving more than 500 barges is breaking up slowly at Locks and Dam 26 on the Mississippi River.

A barge that sank Aug. 3, blocking the smaller of two locks, was raised Saturday night. A Rock Island salvage company which had been working at the site for eight days.

Everest skier gung ho on Bugaboo

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

He's a modern-day samurai. Square-shouldered, barrel-chested, he's as powerful as he is gentle. His name is a household word in his native Japan.

If you're a skier or a lover of high adventure you're almost certain to know of Yuichiro Miura.

At 46, he's living proof that there is practically nothing man can't do, given the desire and absolute courage.

"I suppose it's the samurai spirit," he says in attempting to explain why anyone would want to ski down Mount Everest or ski across the endless tracts of Antarctica.

Miura is in Victoria this week with a group of 65 Japanese boys and girls. They children belong to the Sunbird Sports Club, a Japanese organization closely affiliated with the Boy and Girl Scout movement.

They arrived on Saturday, will spend three or four days at Camp Barnard in Sooke, then go to White Rock and Vancouver for the remainder of their eight-day stay in Canada.

It's a brief get-to-know-a-little-about-B.C. trip, promoted by the provincial ministry of tourism but paid for by the youngsters.

Miura is the drawing-card. For the kids it's a thrill. He is, after all, a genuine hero.

He responds to their affection with gentleness.

Arriving at the Legislative Buildings at noon Saturday for a word of welcome from ministry official Ken Woodward, the group arranges itself for a picture. As they cross the lawn a little boy runs up and slips his hand into Miura's. Wordlessly they join the ranks. The boy has a Good Times '79 happy face stuck to his jersey. He smiles broadly for the cameraman.

For Miura, coming to B.C. is old hat. He's visited the province numerous times but this will be the first time he hasn't donned his skis and shot a film of his derring-do.

In an interview he said B.C. offers some of the best all-round skiing in the world.

That's a big statement considering he has skied almost everywhere — Chile, Argentina, New Zealand, Europe, Asia, North America. You name the slope and he's been there, each catalogued in one of the 70 major films and 100 television shows he's produced.

His favorite resort is Bugaboo in the Kootenays.

But his favorite place is Antarctica.

He gets a wistful look as he tries to explain why.

"It's so endless, so big . . . it's the most adventurous," he says finally.

Miura's devotion transcends the love of the sport. It's the adventure, the challenge that motivate him.

That was the reason for his unparalled ski down Mount Everest in May, 1970.

Climbing to the 26,200-foot level he shot down the slopes over 1.6 miles at speeds up to 93 miles an hour.

The feat was recorded in a spectacular film that was spliced and edited in Canada by the National Film Board. The film won the top award at the Cannes Festival the year it was shown.

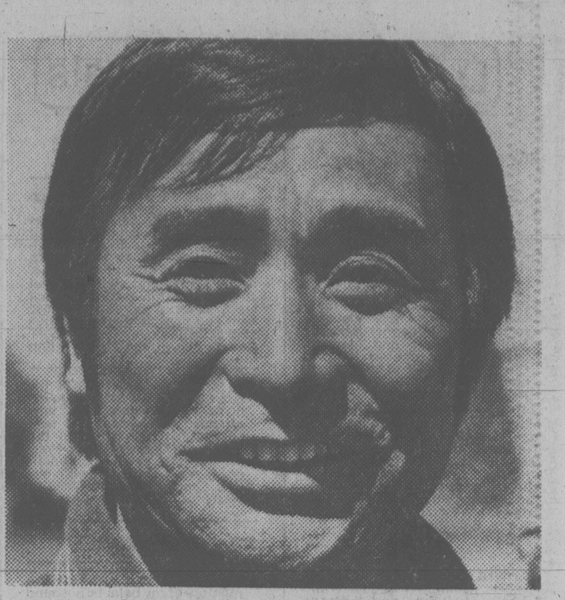
A native of Saporo, where he operates a ski school and an adventure school for children, Miura is still looking for fresh challenges.

He wants to return to Antarctica to ski down Vinson Massif, the highest mountain on the continent.

But it will take years of planning to put together such a trip.

Won't he be too old by then?

He just smiles. His father is 74 and still travels each year to Europe.



YUICHIRO MIURA

Japanese Candu decision still pending: AECL chief

OTTAWA (CP) — The Japanese Atomic Energy Commission's recommendation that Canadian-built Candu nuclear reactors not be imported is not a final government decision, says the chairman of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL).

Thomas Shoyama said in a weekend interview he expects a decision by the Japanese government by October.

"My understanding is that there is no consensus yet on the matter," Shoyama said. "The situation is confused in Tokyo. But it is not finally closed."

Published reports Friday from Tokyo said the Japanese commission decided against importing the reactors because it would not be in keeping with Japan's nuclear power development policy.

Japan is developing its own advanced thermal-type nuclear power reactor, which, like the Canadian reactor, requires heavy water as a coolant.

The reports quoted a Japanese commission spokesman as saying the commission's recommendation must be honored under Japanese law by the premier.

But Shoyoma said that in addition to the commission, two other Japanese agencies are involved in the deal — the Electric Power Development Corp. and the ministry of international trade and industry.

The Japanese government will decide by October, after it has the recommendations of all three agencies, Shoyoma said.

AECL officials have said both the power corporation and the trade ministry favor buying the Canadian reactors.

The Japanese Atomic Energy Commission announced its decision while Ross Campbell, president of the AECL's international division, and George Pon, corporate vice-president of engineering, were in Tokyo.

Pon, who returned from Tokyo Saturday, said in a telephone interview from Toronto he still hopes the deal will go through.

The trade ministry and the power corporation, which would use the Candu reactors, remain anxious to import the Canadian reactors, he said.

Pon, who has been involved in the negotiations with Japan since they started five years ago, declined to say how much the Canadian Crown corporation has spent on initial preparations and experiments in Japan.

Campbell said earlier this summer that Japan planned to introduce two Candu 600-megawatt units in 1981 and two more in 1983. It was estimated the contracts would be worth $1 billion.

Prime Minister Joe Clark, while in Tokyo for an economic summit meeting in July, personally appealed to the Japanese prime minister to help alleviate opposition to the purchase.

Ottawa transit strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Area residents coping with the first day of a strike by 1,500 bus drivers were given a break today when the day dawned sunny and warm.

Although several commuters interviewed appeared to gloat about how quiet the streets were without buses, almost everyone admitted the weather had a lot to do with their good spirits.

Those using cars said they encountered few problems getting to work on time. Some said they were five or 10 minutes longer getting to work, but because they were anticipating traffic jams they had allowed extra time and ended up getting to work early.

Hopes of averting the strike died when the weekend passed without any renewed attempts by either side to reach a settlement.

Bell workers seek mediator

TORONTO (UPC) — The Communications Workers of Canada today asked the federal minister of labor to appoint a mediator in a dispute with Bell Canada which has left 15,000 Quebec and Ontario union members off the job.

A telegram sent to Labor Minister Lincoln Alexander said "our dispute with Bell Canada has been steadily escalating since July 9 and now has reached the point of a total lockout."

The request by union president Fred Pomeroy calls for mediation assistance under the Canada Labor Code. A union spokesman said today the CWC is prepared for a long dispute with the telephone company which serves the two provinces.

The union said last week it would consider that all its workers had been locked out if the company scheduled any lockouts today for workers staging rotating strikes.

The CWC told Bell the workers would show up for work Monday but if the company locked out members at any location in Ontario or Quebec, the union would consider it a lockout of the entire bargaining unit.

In reply, Bell called such action a "general strike." It said unless the union was willing to abandon its right to strike and guarantee employees would work normally until a collective agreement was signed, Bell would not accept the union proposal the company end its lockout policy.

Union spokesman Ed Seymour said Sunday, "We made it very explicit to the company that we were available to work on Monday provided no conditions were attached to it.

Severe slump on way in '80

At least five workmen were killed and 15 injured today when the roof of a 19,500-seat, multi-purpose stadium under construction near Chicago's O'Hare International Airport collapsed with a roar moments after a plane thundered overhead. Spokesmen for the architect and the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said it was too early to speculate on whether the plane had anything to do with the mishap. The roof had been framed and there were piles of plywood stacked on it.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — An economic slowdown nearly as severe as the 1975 recession will hit Canada next year, the Conference Board in Canada reported today.

The manufacturing sector would suffer the earliest and greatest impact from the impending slowdown, the board said in its Quarterly Provincial Forecast.

"Conditions in 1974, which set the stage for the 1975 pause, bear a strikingly uncomfortable resemblance to those now evident," the board said.

During that period, western economies were faced with an abrupt jump in the world price of oil, and interruptions of supply were felt most severely in the United States, which plunged into a recession.

Consumer demand for automobiles and housing dropped drastically during that period and affected Canadian industries supplying those U.S. manufacturers.

"History, it would appear is about to repeat himself, although the repercussions for Canada will not be as severe as those in 1975, nor will the various provinces or industries share the burden of the slowdown in the same fashion."

Meanwhile, the board forecast that Real Domestic Product, which grew to 4 per cent in 1978, will slow to only 3.3 per cent growth this year and to 1.5 per cent in 1980, with the manufacturing sector leading the slowdown.

The board said manufacturing growth would slow to 4 per cent from 7.8 per cent by the end of this year, "deteriorating to a 2 per cent decline in 1980."

Industries such as pulp and paper, steel and textiles, currently operating at near full capacity, would be unable to post any major expansion, the report said.

"Other manufacturing industries, particularly the motor vehicles and parts sector, have begun and would continue to curtail activity in response to softening U.S. demand.

"In summary, there is little room for upward movement in manufacturing, but considerable risk of decline," the Conference Board said.

The report identified the construction industry as one of the few to inspire optimism.

"After three years of decline, a welcome expansion is foreseen in non-residential activity in this forecast."

By province, growth in Newfoundland was expected to decline to 2 per cent next year, while Prince Edward Island's growth would reach 4 per cent. Nova Scotia's real growth was forecast at 1.1 per cent and New Brunswick's growth was expected to fall to just more than 2 per cent.

Quebec was predicted to register the country's second lowest growth rate at .8 per cent in 1980, due mainly to a decline in construction. Overall growth in Ontario was forecast to drop to .7 per cent.

Manitoba was expected to register growth of 2 per cent next year, Saskatchewan 2.4 per cent, Alberta 4.6 per cent and British Columbia 2.6 per cent.

The comparatively bright outlook for the province is attributed to an eight-percent increase in mineral production expected in 1979 and 1980, improved cost-competitiveness and fewer strikes.

Ross Dam talks stall

B.C. has requested a one-month delay in continuing negotiations with Seattle City Light over the raising of the Ross Dam.

Talks were scheduled to continue this week with Seattle and B.C. environment ministry officials giving their positions for compensating the city for the loss of electricity if the Seattle City Light dam on the Skagit River is not raised.

But B.C. asked for a delay because its proposal has yet to be approved by cabinet.

The water level from a raised dam would flood 4,800 acres of provincial recreation area.

The international dispute has gone on for a decade following a 1967 pact in which the provincial government agreed to the flooding in exchange for an annual payment of $34,000.

Bob Murray, Seattle City Light superintendent, said he doubts the provincial government will submit acceptable terms.

"The bottom line is how much it is worth to them not to have us do something (build the dam)," Murray said Sunday. "The answer, I fear, is that it isn't worth that much to them."

Premier Bill Bennett, whose father, W.A.C. Bennett, was premier when the 1967 agreement was signed, said he doesn't want the dam raised.

Another obstacle is an environmental lawsuit which a U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., is expected to rule on this fall.

The dam would mean about 46 megawatts of average power and as much as 292 megawatts during peak electrical use.

"We can't afford to let it go by default, and we won't," Murray said.

Lightning sparks 90 fires

VANCOUVER (CP) — A series of weekend lightning storms sparked 90 new forest fires in British Columbia's Interior as a dry spell continues to increase the fire hazard.

A spokesman for the B.C. Forest Service said Sunday all the new fires were under control although a fire covering about 1,000 acres in Sicamous was causing some problems.

He said firefighters had the blaze under control Saturday until strong winds carried it over established fire guards. The fire, burning up the side of a mountain, was expected to be brought under control early today.

The spokesman said man-caused fires still are a problem, but appear to have declined because people realize they have to be more careful in a drought.

Arson is suspected in the largest of three forest fires that broke out near the Okanagan city of Penticton, forestry ministry officials said.

Ranger Vern Barge said arson was suspected because of the speed at which the fire ignited and spread. All three fires were brought under control.

Meanwhile south of the border, rain fell on Idaho's parched forest lands today, raising hopes for containment by the weekend of the vast Mortar Creek blaze in the state's Primitive Area.

Scattered showers, accompanied by cooler temperatures, fell on the area Sunday.

The rain was to taper off Tuesday, and the weather service said by Wednesday there would be a return of hot, dry conditions.

1,000 killed as dam bursts

NEW DELHI (AP) — About 1,000 persons were killed following the collapse of a dam in western India that unleashed a wall of water six metres high on the town of Morvi and buried it in mud, All-India Radio reported today.

"I am deeply shocked at the enormous loss of precious lives and destruction of property caused by the sudden floods," Prime Minister Charan Singh said in a message to the chief minister of Gujarat state, Babubhai Patel.

Singh sent Agriculture Minister Brahm Perkash to Morvi to survey the damage.

Earlier, a former mayor of the town said he feared the death toll would run as high as 5,000.

Vigilantes guard B.C. environment

The campaign to rid B.C. of people who abuse the environment is being stepped up.

The federal and provincial governments, plus the B.C. Wildlife Federation, have joined forces to expand the watchdog program that seeks out offenders.

For the past four years, hunting and fishing regulations included a mail-in card by which environmental offenders could be reported to the fish and wildlife branch.

Now, the Observe Record and Report program is being expanded to include a free Zenith telphone number and additional cards to be distributed to enforcement sections of the government departments and the affiliated clubs of the federation for people to file when they spot environmental abuse.

"If you keep people nervous, you keep them honest," Bill Otway, executive director of the federation, said. "The deterrent factor is important."

About 200,000 wallet-sized ORR cards are being distributed, to be filled in whenever an environmental offence is observed and mailed or taken to a listed government agency.

And finally, spotted paint

BURY, England (CP) — The Lancashire town of Bury, which gave the world the meat product known as black pudding, now has a new claim to fame — spotted paint.

Officials of the Donald Macpherson company say the paint was discovered by accident.

"The spray-on paint works because each spot is in a chemical sac, which bursts when it hits the surface," a spokesman explains. "The ingredient which prevents the spots from dissolving into the base paint remains top secret."

The paint, which is being exported to many countries, is sold in several color combinations, but customers normally take a mix with one base color and two color spots. It is being used in hospital wards because it is easily cleaned and, adds the company proudly, it already adorns the palaces of several wealthy oil sheiks in the Middle East.

"At one time the mere idea of spotted paint was considered ludicrous," says Gerald Skinn, technical expert with the company. "Now our sales are increasing all the time and there is a growing demand from overseas. We're currently working on a secret formula for stripes."

Run-around follows ferry grounding

Owners of vehicles which were battered in the Queen of Alberni grounding in Active Pass Thursday say they are getting the run-around as they search for someone to process damage claims.

"Nobody wants to talk to you," said Trevor Gallimore, whose small car was crushed beneath a truck when the ferry began to list after running up on a reef.

"You got to one person and they tell you to talk to someone else and so on."

"That ferry will have to sail up the steps of the Parliament buildings before you see me pay anything for this mess," said Terry Elliott, whose tractor trailer was seriously damaged when it slid along the deck of the ferry.

About 60 trucks and cars were damaged when the ferry began to list to port after running aground on the reef.

Bev Penhall, Insurance Corp. of B.C. spokesman, said the fact the vehicles were damaged on the ferry makes no difference to the corporation policy holder.

However, no one knows who will ultimately pay for vehicle damage until the federal transportation investigation into the cause of the grounding is completed, Penhall added.

While most vehicles on board were commercial freight carriers insured in B.C., most of the recreational vehicles on board came from outside of the province and Penhall said those owners will have to deal with their firms individually.

Insurance underwriters for the B.C. Ferry Authority have hired a Vancouver firm of admiralty lawyers who in turn have appointed adjusters to assess damage to all vehicles.

John Jessiman, spokesman for the firm of McCrae, Montgomery, Spring and Cunningham, said he could not even guess when figures of actual damage to vehicles on board will be available.

RCMP were in Active Pass Saturday issuing warnings to sport fishermen who refused to clear the narrow channel for larger vessels.

A police spokesman said five written warnings were handed out along with 50 verbal warnings.

700 soldiers slain in Sahara

ALGIERS (Reuter) — Some 400 Moroccan soldiers were killed and 300 wounded in a weekend clash with Polisario guerrillas in the heart of the Western Sahara, a Polisario Front spokesman said today.

The official told reporters 175 Moroccan troops were also captured, including a captain and three lieutenants, in the six-hour operation in the Bir Enzaran oasis. Large quantities of military equipment were destroyed or seized, he said.

The Bir Enzaran clash, in the Moroccan part of the disputed territory, is one of the bloodiest recently reported.

The clash between the Algerian-backed Polisario forces and Moroccan troops came a week after Mauritania signed a peace accord with the guerrillas, who are seeking independence for the former Spanish colony of Western Sahara.

Following the signing of the peace treaty here nine days ago, Mauritania announced it was renouncing all claim to the southern third of the Western Sahara which it took over after Spain ceded the territory in 1976. Morocco got the rest of the territory, which contains the world's richest phosphate reserves.

Disco dancers putting foot in it

DETROIT (AP) — If you Boogie Oogie Oogie, you might end up looking more like a Disco Duck than a Dancing Queen.

At least, that's what doctors think might happen when folks take to the dance floor to move along with those popular songs.

The disco craze has brought with it a new problem, the American Podiatry Association reported at its weekend meeting here — disco foot.

The ailment is primarily caused by a lack of proper exercise and the shoes chosen for dancing, said Dr. Marshall Solomon, a Livonia, Mich. podiatrist.

He said symptoms can range from sprains and stress fractures to huge calluses and corns.

He said 10 to 12 per cent of his current cases are disco foot sufferers.

However, Dr. Joseph D'Amico, a New York podiatrist credited with identifying the affliction, said that almost 25 per cent of the ankle sprains and foot problems he treats are related to dancing.

"Basically, novice disco dancers lack the stamina and flexibility that rigorous dancing requires," Solomon says. "The dancing may worsen existing foot conditions that patients easily live with under normal, less-strenuous conditions."

About 7,000 foot specialists at the meeting strongly endorsed a warmup stretching-exercise routine — lasting from five to seven minutes — before engaging in heavy disco.

Only then can the pain and suffering associated with disco foot be alleviated, they said.

"Basically, they're the same type of stretches joggers do, like toe touches," said Dr. Solomon.

Although disco foot attacks dancers of both sexes, he said women are more likely to contract the disease.

"Traditionally, their dance steps are flashier than men's. They wear higher heels and pointier-type shoes."

He suggests — in addition to exercise — that women wear moderate high-heeled shoes with a wide toe base, and that men wear shoes with heels not exceeding two centimetres.

"Of course, if foot problems persist, the American Podiatry Association suggests seeking professional care," he said.

Blanshard killing civic core: mayor

The speed and volume of traffic on the Blanshard Street extension is helping to kill Saanich's hopes of having "comprehensive" commercial-residential growth in the municipality's so-called civic core, Mayor Mel Couvelier said today.

He said because of the traffic the companies involved feel that any major retail development would be unsuccessful in the civic core — a half-mile long banana-shaped area between Vernon and Seymour.

He said municipal staff earlier had produced a report favoring piecemeal development because of the fractured ownership of the 50 parcels of land.

About 18 parcels still remain in separate ownership.

"We politicians said no, let's try to have comprehensive development," Couvelier said today.

With that view in mind, Couvelier said council had approached Campeau Corporation of Quebec and asked it to consider extending the Town and Country Shopping Centre into the core.

He said Campeau took options on 12 parcels of land but "all of a sudden backed out." The company had considered connecting the old shopping centre to the new development by overhead and underground passes at its own expense.

In addition to the traffic problem, Couvelier said he understood Campeau's main tenant, Safeway, had refused to cross the street.

He said if the Campeau project had gone ahead it would have been a major factor in co-ordinating development in the civic core.

Admitting that piecemeal development is the only answer is a major disappointment, Couvelier said.

The council is now reconsidering a proposal, rejected earlier, for a professional building to house 40 doctors and dentists on the south side of Vernon Avenue.

A 4-4 vote earlier defeated the proposal by Conrad Credits Ltd. because aldermen felt the project might prejudice comprehensive commercial development. The Advisory Planning Commission expressed similar concerns.

At a recent public hearing, however, the majority of council favored the project. The application has been tabled pending a review of parking requirements.

If piecemeal development is allowed, Couvelier said councils now and in the future must look closely at every application.

Museum gets grant

The Provincial Museum has received $30,000 from the federal government under a program to get museums outside their own walls.

A total of 34 museums in Quebec, Manitoba and B.C. receive grants of nearly $1 million.

The B.C. museum gets the money for a touring museum for toddlers, which will go to more than 40 rural communities in Western Canada.

Court ruling quashes garbage pickup bylaw

The city of Victoria's new garbage collection bylaw, which gives free collection to owners but not to apartment tenants, has been quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court.

The 12-page judgment by Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie has been filed at the Vancouver courthouse, but copies for Victoria had not arrived this morning.

Victoria lawyer James Carfra, representing Elsie Wedman, the owner of a small apartment building, argued Aug. 2 in court that the bylaw is discriminatory.

The bylaw, approved June 14, states the occupier of each parcel of land shall be entitled to free removal of two garbage cans by the city 50 times a year at intervals not exceeding 12 days.

But the definition of occupier is given, in the case of a parcel of land occupied by one person or by a family, as that person or the head of the family, and in the case of land separately owned by two or more persons, firms or corporations, the owner of that parcel of land.

Parcel of land is defined as meaning any unit of real property held under a separate title, including strata lots in condominiums.

What this means, Carfra told Mr. Justice McKenzie, is that on a hypothetical city street, two cans of garbage will be picked up free from a single-family house, 40 cans (or the equivalent pooled into a bulk container) from a 20-suite condominium — but only two cans from a 20-suite apartment.

The apartment owner was responsible for paying for private pickups even though, through municipal taxes, he helped pay for city garbage collection.

Because more than half the units of accommodation in the city are apartment suites, this meant council deprived more than half its residents of free garbage collection.

The reasons for Mr. Justice McKenzie's quashing of the bylaw are expected to reach Victoria in a day or two.

Top cop spots pot

An Ontario man was fined $100 in provincial court this morning because Central Saanich Police Chief Bob Miles spotted a marijuana plant while buying tomatoes at a roadside stand on June 17.

Miles, stopping to buy tomatoes at 6506 Oldfield, glanced toward the house and spotted the marijuana in full leaf.

Armed with a warrant the next day, police raided the property and found 31 plants.

Thomas David Todd Butler was charged with possession.

Lawyer Christopher Maddock pleaded guilty on Butler's behalf.

Because of the marijuana incident, Butler was evicted from the Oldfield Road address and moved back to Ontario.

Police-fire split not seen as vote issue in Esquimalt

Splitting Esquimalt police and firefighting forces into separate departments is unlikely to be an election issue this November, special committee chairman Ald. James McEvay said today.

McEvay heads a four-man study group appointed by Mayor Art Young to determine the best way to provide two distinct public safety services satisfactory to provincial police and fire commissions.

McEvay said he didn't think his committee's report — which will blueprint methods and costs of fulfilling separate police and fire coverage — can be an election issue, even if the document is delivered before the elections for mayor and aldermen.

Esquimalt has one of the last dual-capacity forces of its kind and was the subject of an efficiency study commissioned by the attorney-general through the B.C. Police Commission. The report convinced mayor and aldermen that improvement in public safety was needed.

"There is no question we have to do something different from what we are doing now. I don't think there is any alternative for any council. We can't stay with the status quo," McEvay said.

"We want to present all possible alternatives and costs and come up with something to provide the people of the municipality with good protection at the lowest cost."

Some suggestions made by Young when the council committee was appointed included two separate departments, one each for fire and police protection; a single-purpose police department and fire protection by agreement through an adjoining municipality; the use of volunteer and full time firemen; contracting-out fire protection.

"Costs are going sky high in protective services," McEvay noted, "and we want to give the people of the municipality the most coverage we can without taxes going sky high."

The committee has asked for surveys and information from the provincial fire commission, police chief Arthur Burton and the Esquimalt police union and McEvay indicated members will apply themselves to the subject when all the facts are before them, probably by October.

Bike stolen, man dies

A 65-year-old Colwood man who collapsed early Sunday morning while telling police how he had found what he believed was his stolen bicycle died less than two hours later.

Thomas W. Graves heard a noise outside his apartment at 2847 Sooke Lake Road at about 2:30 a.m. When he looked outside and noticed that his bicycle was missing, he decided to go looking for it. A short time later, he spotted a bike he thought was his and he soon located a police cruiser.

As he was telling Const. Dave Copeland of Colwood RCMP what had happened, Graves suddenly collapsed, apparently of a heart attack. Copeland and Auxiliary Const. Marcel Krywy immediately began cardio-pulmonary resuscitation until the ambulance arrived.

Graves was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital at 4:22 a.m.

Police today said that a man is "assisting us in the investigation," but they would not identify him. No charge has been laid.

Safeway hold-up suspect remanded

Ernest Joseph Leblanc, 29, of 3267A Galloway was charged in provincial court today with two counts of armed robbery.

He was released on his own recognizance and $2,000 bail with one or two sureties on the undertaking he carry no offensive weapons.

He was remanded until next Monday for election of trial method.

He is charged with robbing Safeway stores at University Heights shopping centre Aug. 7 and Town and Country shopping centre Aug. 10.

Waterfront strollers get an aerial bonus

Waterfront strollers got a bonus late Sunday afternoon when Canada's new Aurora maritime patrol aircraft flew a couple of low passes past Beacon Hill Park en route to CFB Comox.

The plane came over from the Abbotsford air show where it made its Canadian debut.

Although still the property of Douglas Aircraft, it bore a maple leaf and Canadian forces colors.

The four-engine plane, with stinger tail like the Argus it will replace, left Comox early today for the Arctic where it will make polar crossings to test its electronic navigation equipment.

Although bearing strong resemblance to the 20-year-old Argus, Aurora has a wingspan about 50 feet shorter and closes a two-generation gap with its sophisticated electronics.

It will visit Thule and Alaska during the week, returning via Comox Friday for further flight testing at the factory in Burbank, Calif.

Ask the Times

Q. Could you please tell us whether the expression is "splitting image" or "spitting image?" We would also like to know the origin of the expression. C.A.

A. It is spitting image and comes from the old English expression spit and image. The word spit, around 1890, meant "a speaking likeness."

A sentimental journey to Camp Five

WE WENT ON A SENTIMENTAL journey last weekend. The occasion was the Camp Five Reunion, a rallying of former dwellers at that remote inland logging station.

MacMillan Bloedel's Camp Five itself no longer exists. The crowding second growth of a new forest has taken over the lakeside site of what was once a complete and busy village in the wilderness.

But for the two days — or rather the evening and afternoon — of the reunion, Camp Five lived again, in the remember-whens of the 400 men and women who converged on Campbell River to take part.

There was a buffet supper in the Ironwood Mall. It was a meal fit for a logger, with mountains of potato salad and mounds of cold cuts.

Afterward, they showed slides of camp scenes and personalities. Outdated logging locomotives rolled along grades from which the steel has long been taken up. Men now well on in years saw themselves as young and hardy chokermen or rigging slingers or hooktenders.

Afterward, there was dancing. Good, loud solid music for a Tame Ape to get his teeth into, and heavy on the polkas.

Camp Five had its beginnings as early as 1941, when the company sledded the first buildings into place by Brewster Lake. It opened in 1943, complete with cookhouse and bunkhouses, office and commissary, sawfiler's shack and married quarters. It remained a major base of operations until 1964.

It was the home of their childhood to many of the young people who came to the reunion. They remembered swimming and skating, parties and community doings. All part of the busy life of a settlement shut off from the outside world and dependent on its own resources.

A sigh from an elderly camp push. "But it changed after we got the road," he recalls. "Things were different, then."

Camp Five witnessed and took part in the great transition that revolutionized logging on the B.C. coast.

Trucks replaced locomotives and skeleton cars as log conveyors. Gravelled roads took the place of steel rails. And with a road to the outside, the old isolation ended. A logger and his family could come and go in their time off. They could visit friends in town; they were less dependent on their camp neighbors for companionship.

There were other changes. It was in Camp Five that the push, Eagle-Eye Lund, said to a young bull bucker in charge of the falling, "What do you know about chain saws?"

"Nothing," the bull bucker told him.

"Well, you'd better learn," said Eagle-Eye, "because we've got a bunch of them coming in."

The saws were forerunners of the light, compact, one-man tool that mows today's woods. "Hitler Specials" the men called them, a name inspired by their German origin. They were two-man machines, heavy, cumbersome and pernickety. But their introduction marked the beginning of the end for the old axe-and-crosscut falling sets.

Also, it was at Camp Five that the hard hat, which every logger now wears on the job as a matter of course, made its appearance.

"The boys hated them" one old-timer racalls. "They swore they'd quit before they wore 'em. But they came around."

The Camp Five Reunion continued next day with a picnic on the lawn of MacMillan Bloedel's Menzies Bay division headquarters within viewing distance of tide-torn Seymour Narrows. There was pop and there were hot dogs, but no organized program. People simply did what pleased them: sat around in the sunshine and shared their memories.

A company crummy, one of the buses that take crews to work, ran a shuttle service up the logging road to the Camp Five site. Win and I went in for a look-see.

Except for vestigial clearings and a couple of old concrete foundations, there was nothing to indicate that a large and bustling logging camp had once sprawled over the site.

Camp Five mushroomed out of the stumps and slash of the old woods. And, its purpose served, to the new woods it has returned.

Simpsons-Bay merger complete

TORONTO (UPC) — The merger of Simpsons Ltd. with The Bay was approved by Simpsons shareholders and the amalgamation has taken place, Hudson's Bay Company announced.

The Bay said in a statement that Simpsons shareholders who elected the cash option will receive $3.56 for each share of Simpsons. Those who elected the share option will receive one Hudson's Bay ordinary share for each eight Simpsons shares.

Simpsons will be delisted by the Toronto Stock Exchange. The Bay said that Simpsons will retain its own identity and will operate separately from The Bay.

Today's Markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market advanced sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today. Among the 14 stock groups within the composite index, eleven gained, led by real estate and construction. Golds had the largest of the three declines. Advances outnumbered declines 200 to 171 with 205 issues unchanged. The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Canadian Long Island Petroleums Ltd. will cease to trade at the close Tuesday and will be replaced at the opening Wednesday with shares of First Calgary Petroleums Ltd. Canadian Long Island has merged with Caltor Petroleums, whose shareholders now control the company. The company name has been changed to First Calgary Petroleums.

New York

The New York stock market extended its gains across a broad front today, shrugging off adverse economic news. The market's rally extended through most sectors, and over-all gaining issues swamped losers by a margin of more than 3-to-1. Large institutional investors have recently increased buying of stocks — apparently in the belief interest rates may fall, thus reducing the return on other types of investments.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of trading today. The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 475.8, up 5.8. Industrials and oils firmed while banks were mixed and golds eased. Canadian shares were mixed.

Marital tiff not all bad

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Army chaplain says "creative fighting" between husbands and wives can help strengthen marriages.

Chaplain John Bakle propounded his theory on the basis of what he said is 18 years of experience in counselling married couples.

Capt. Bakle outlined his ideas in the 3rd Infantry Division's newpaper, Frontline, in West Germany. Army officials were so impressed with the tips that they distributed extracts to other army publications.

The chaplain wrote that friction often develops between a husband and wife as they discover differences in each other and then try "to change and mutually grow from these discoveries.

"This friction and the attempt to grow from it can be called 'creative fighting,' " said Bakle.

"In many successful marriages, I have discovered several principles that I believe every married couple should keep in mind, if their 'fighting' is to be creative and not destructive," Bakle said.

He outlined these ground rules:

— Express opinions, desires and concerns as calmly as possible. Listen as well as talk. (He warned that "often, the truth becomes lost in the heat of emotion.")

— Try to appreciate your mate's point of view, "even if it doesn't make sense at the moment."

— Differences should not be discussed during meals or at bedtime.

— Don't zero in on your mate's vulnerable areas to gain the upper hand.

— Don't rake up old scores or arguments.

— Don't call each other names.

— Don't use the silent treatment because it ends effective communication and the possibility of compromise.

— Give up wild accusations, verbal abuse, shouting the other down and threats.

— Don't play psychiatrist by analysing the other.

— Don't drag in children and relatives as allies or go-betweens.

— Physical violence can never be condoned.

The chaplain cautioned against using tears "as a form of psychic warfare," which he suggested might boomerang.

And, finally, Bakle advised all marital combatants to "learn when to call a truce" in a quarrel.

Glass exterior wall makes outdoors seem part of the room

Furniture defines rooms

By Pauline Graves

Architecture in the last several years has brought us the open look, that is, room areas rather than separate rooms for each function, and just in time, too. With inflation and with high building costs, affordable houses would consist of a cluster of small, cramped rooms.

When several rooms share the same ceiling, without separating walls, they all seem more spacious than their true sizes. But a separation can be achieved, nonetheless, as exemplified in the room shown here, by designer Bill Hulse.

Furniture defines the living room in this attractive house. Open to the dining area on one side, and to the game area on another, the living room space has its own identity. Actually, it is an oversize conversation grouping.

The two long sofas outline two sides, and two comfortable upholstered chairs, side by side, close in the third. They are all gathered around the handsome, glass topped coffee table, convenient to every seating piece. Because the sofas and chairs are all heavy, the light look of the table offers a contrast, and reduces the bulk of the over-all grouping.

The blank back of an upholstered sofa presents an unwelcoming, almost forbidding look to those who face it. However, a walnut stained Parsons table handles that problem by going the length of the sofa's back. It augments the separation of the group from the rest of the room and softens the total appearance by displaying a lamp and decoratives.

'I'll be glad to fix squeak if you'll kindly not squawk'

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from BLEARY-EYED AND ENVIOUS brought back memories. (BLEARY-EYED couldn't sleep because the newlyweds in the apartment directly above her had a squeaky bed. You advised her to come right out and tell the woman.)

When I was a bachelor, I had the same problem. Only the couple whose bedroom was directly above mine were middle-age people who alternated between keeping me awake with their noisy arguments and their squeaky bed.

I decided to tackle the problems one at a time. After a week of the squeaky-bed disturbance, I saw the man in the elevator, so I whispered discreetly, "I haven't had a good night's sleep in a week, pal. Your squeaky bed has been keeping me awake every night!"

He replied, "Thanks. I'll take care of it . . . and please don't mention it to my wife when she gets back. She's been out of town."

BILL IN ROME

DEAR ABBY: An elderly man had a heart attack aboard the same plane I was on just as it was taxiing for takeoff. An ambulance with paramedics arrived within seconds of our return to the terminal.

I realized then that it had been two years since I had taken the cardiac pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course. Frankly, I couldn't remember all the procedures. I had planned to refresh my memory (it's in my manual) but I never got around to it.

Yesterday, a neighbor's father had a heart attack. Another man and I did what we could, but the victim died. Actually, we did little or nothing to increase his chances of survival. In the panic, I couldn't remember what I was supposed to do, and the other man knew even less than I did. In short, neither one of us knew what the h--- we were doing!

As a result, I have placed my CPR instructions with our utility bills, and every month when my wife and I pay our bills we review it. If an emergency arises we will not feel so helpless.

CPR is simple. Everyone should be familiar with it, and the procedure should be reviewed periodically. Sometimes just taking the course is not enough.

LAZY AND ASHAMED

DEAR LAZY: Thanks for an important reminder.

Readers, if a relative, friend or stranger needed emergency first aid, would you know what to do? Or to put it another way, if you were suddenly stricken, wouldn't you hope that someone present would know how to administer CPR?

I urge you to call your local heart association or the Red Cross and find out when and where classes in these lifesaving procedures are available.
